POSSES SEEK TRAIL OF AGED MAIL ROBBER

Leavenworth Warden Won't Lose Arm as Result of Shotgun Wound

Leavenworth, Kas. —(P)—Warden Thomas B. White, who was struck in the left arm by a shotgun charge fired by a fugitive in yesterday's break at the federal penitentiary, will not lose the member, physicians said last night.

At first it was reported that amputation might be necessary. Surgeons removed a piece of shattered bone from the forearm above the wrist and later announced the operation a success. He also received a flesh wound in the left side of the chest.

The warden, who is 50 years old, formerly was a Texas ranger, as was an investigator for the department of justice, and as head of the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Leavenworth, Kas. —(P)—Three of seven convicts who executed a daring plot to escape from the federal penitentiary here yesterday are dead, apparently by their own hands, three of their companions are in prison, and the other, a gray-haired Oklahoma mail train robber, is hunted by possemen.

The fugitive, Earl Thayer, 65, an Oklahoma mail train robber, disappeared under the noses of 200 soldiers, prison guards, civilian officers and citizens, who yesterday cornered four of the seven prisoners in the farm home of E. C. Salsburg, eight miles west of Leavenworth.

Five men were wounded during the fight of the prisoners, including Warden Thomas B. White, who was kidnapped from his office and used as a shield to aid in the departure through the massive front gate of the penitentiary.

The warden, whose left arm was shattered by a shotgun charge after he grappled with one of his abductors, during a halt on a country road, underwent an operation in a Leavenworth hospital. None of those hurt was in a critical condition.

Prison authorities said efforts to learn how the participants in the break obtained their weapons have been futile. Three of the prisoners, returned to cells following short-lived liberty, refused to discuss a shotgun, rifle and four revolvers they were believed to have possessed at the beginning of their flight.

4-Hour Battle

From the hills surrounding the Salsburg home, the possemen for nearly four hours answered shots of the convicts. Then approaching the Salsburgs, they hurried tear gas bombs at the structure three shots were heard from inside the farm home, then silence.

Making a concerted rush, the attackers entered the building through doors and windows. Three of the fugitives, whose trail across the muddy by-roads of northeastern Kansas was marked by bloodshed, kidnapping and terrorism, lay dead in the attic.

After an autopsy, coroner T. N. Sexton said there was no doubt in his mind that Will Green, alleged leader of the break, had killed his two companions and then taken his own life.

Green was dead with a bullet wound in his head. One hand clasp of a revolver. The wound was covered with powder burns. His companions, Grover C. Durrill and George Curtis, each had been shot behind the left ear.

The other three participants in the break were captured earlier in the day in wooded hollow, five miles west of Leavenworth. They are Tom Underwood, 46, Duluth, Minn., received in 1929 to serve 25 years for mail robbery; Stanley Brown, 43, Fargo, N. D., received in 1925 to serve 25 years for mail robbery, and Charles Berta, 30, San Francisco, received in October, and also serving a 25 year term for mail robbery. Berta was shot in the shoulder when he resisted arrest.

Robbed Mail Train

Thayer, the sole fugitive today, was under sentence for the robbery of a mail train near Okesa, Okla., in August, 1928. Durrill and Curtis, found slain in the Salsburg attic, were under 25 years sentence each for the same holdup.

Green, the reputed leader, entered Leavenworth prison from Kansas City in 1924, also to serve 25 years for mail robbery.

Besides Warden White and Berta, the wounded were J. D. Galvin, acting assistant deputy warden; L. W. Mooney, a prison guard, and W. S. Bradford, mayor of McLouth, Kas., a posseman. All were injured by convict bullets.

With the coming of dawn today, bloodhounds, aided by army airplanes from Fort Leavenworth, took up the search for Thayer, which was ended by darkness last night.

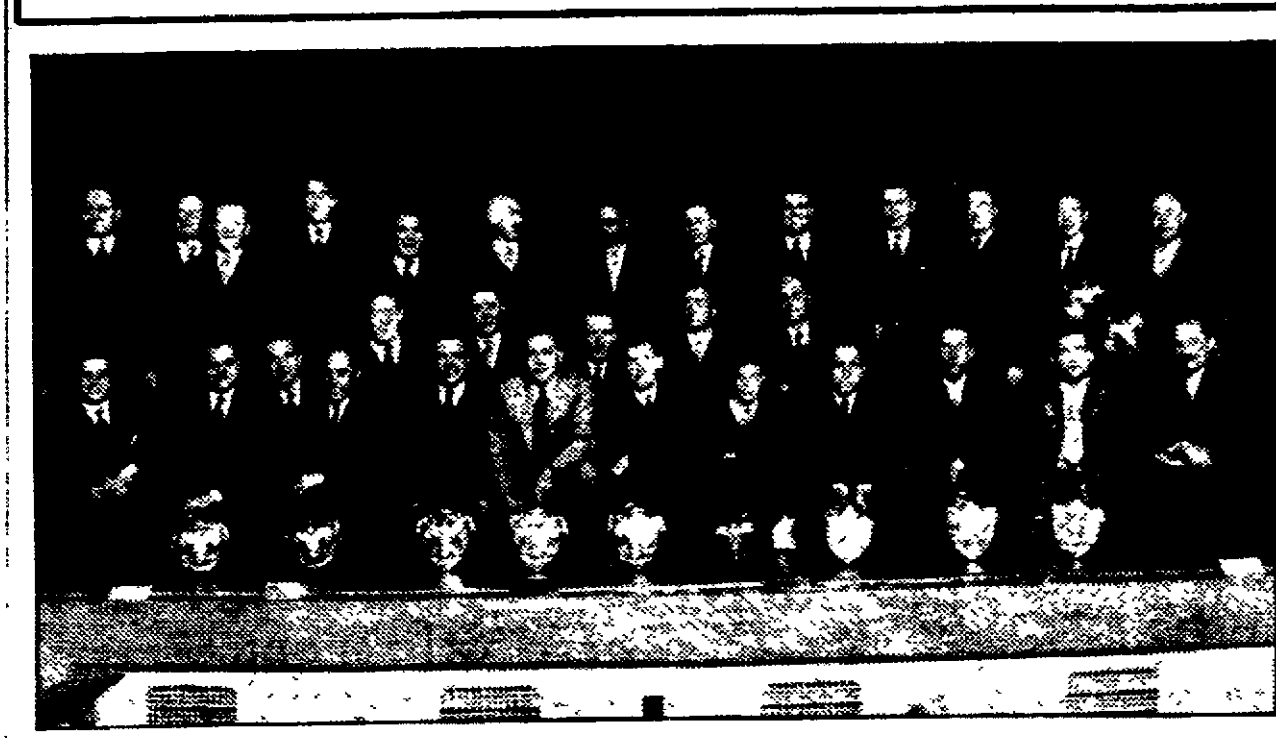

Salsburg, the farmer in whose home the three dead convicts made their last stand, said that the elderly fugitive entered the house with the trio, but after a few minutes slipped out of a window. The farmer was forced to remain in the building during most of the siege, but finally managed to escape and joined the posse outside.

The mail robber-fugitives began their desperate effort for liberty after breakfast yesterday, when they presented a forged pass and entered the warden's office. Deftly, the warden and E. H. Eckholdt, his secretary, ahead, the prisoners commanded the outer door guards to allow them to pass.

Once outside the walls, the warden and his aide were used as shields by the convicts. One shot was fired by a tower guard, but at the order of Eckholdt, firing was halted.

Abandoning Eckholdt, but forcing Warden White to accompany them, the fleeing men hurried down a nearby highway. They soon halted an automobile driven by Negro

MAKE PLANS TO PREVENT SPREAD OF DIPHTHERIA

Will Include Children in Kaukauna and Appleton in Inoculation Drive

Plans are to be completed at a meeting of the county health committee in January for the institution of a campaign in the county to treat school children with toxin-anti-toxin for the prevention of diphtheria. At a meeting of the committee this week, Miss Klein said, an agreement was reached between the committee and a committee from the Outagamie Medical society whereby the doctors will conduct the inoculations at a price of 75¢ per hour. The physicians' committee, however, said that it would have to report the matter back to the county medical society for final ratification.

The committee also has decided, Miss Klein said, that the inoculation drive shall include school children in Appleton and Kaukauna as well as the rural and parochial schools outside these cities. A system of treatment for the various schools in each district will be worked out after the health committee meeting in January, when final acceptance of the plan between the doctors and the committee is made. A fund of $1,500 was provided by the county board in November to start the inoculation work. More funds will be appropriated when this fund is exhausted, it was indicated by members of the board.

105 Men Now Employed On Underpass Project On Highway 10

30 MORE WILL BE PUT ON IN NEXT 2 WEEKS

Use Five Times as Many Men as if Work Was Done With Machinery

There are 105 men employed in excavating work for the underpass to be constructed at the intersection of Highway 10 and the Chicago and Northwestern railroad tracks west of Appleton. The work is being done by the Dickman Construction company of Kiel at a cost of $25,000 on a state contract. Only the excavation work is being done this fall. The balance of the work will be let by the state next spring.

The number of men employed on the job is about five times the number which would be required if the work was being done with machinery. Under the contract the Dickman firm agrees to employ only hand labor on the job. It was estimated by contractors that about 20 trucks and one excavating machine would be required on the job if machinery could be used. This would mean the employment of about 21 men, or about one fifth as many as are now employed.

However, it was estimated, that the cost of the work if machinery was used would be about $10,000, whereas the cost of the work as it is being done now is about two and a half times as much.

The men employed there are working on two shifts each day. One shift of about 50 works from 6 a. m. until noon and the other shift works from noon until 6 p. m. The men receive 40 cents per hour.

Next week the company plans to put about 30 additional men to work constructing a drainage trench. Lights are used to make it possible for the laborers on the job to work early in the morning and late in the afternoon.

However, it will not be possible to use lights for digging the trench, so the firm plans to work the crews eight hours a day and employ one gang of 15 men one week and a second gang of 15 men the next week. The two gangs will alternate.

Already more than 500 men have registered for jobs on the underpass.

CONSIDER CUTS IN EDUCATION BUDGET

Board of Education to Apportion Three to Recommend Decreases

A committee of three will be chosen from the board of education to consider cuts to be made in the school budget, it was decided at the monthly board meeting Friday night at Lincoln school. Supt. B. J. Rohan, one member of the maintenance committee, and one member of the education committee, will compose the budget committee.

The board will borrow its first money for teachers' salaries this year next week, in anticipation of the tax levy in January. It was decided to send but one representative to the National Education association meeting this year in Washington, D. C.

The board voted to defer the proposed $3,000 audit education project on recommendation of the city council. Bills allowed at the meeting aggregated $3,260. As a first step in cutting the budget the board decided not to purchase the junior police badges, according to former plans. The new gate at the Lincoln school entrance was reported by the maintenance committee, reports on the orthopedic school, school health, high school activities, and safety were given. Reports on the revised budget were handed to each board member but there was no discussion.

Two cases concerning injury damages to school children on school premises were disallowed, as the board carries no insurance on school children. The board adjourned subject to call by the president.

SHERWOOD PETITION SCORES MAIL SERVICE

A petition asking for improved mail service is being circulated in Sherwood and vicinity. It is planned to send the petition to Mr. E. R. Reilly, congressman at Washington, D. C., requesting him to take the matter up with postal authorities for immediate investigation. Those circulating the petition allege that their mail is now a day or more late as the result of the recent elimination of two trains operated through Sherwood by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. The petition also claims that present trains, due to arrive at 4:45 and 7:30 p. m. are late. It holds that the afternoon train often is so late the mail does not get to the post office in time for distribution before the office closes at 6 p. m.

NINE PROBATE CASES LISTED FOR HEARING

Sing Solo Parts in Oratorio

Miss Mueller

Miss Farrell

Miss Helen Mueller and Miss Gertrude Farrell, teachers of voice at Lawrence Conservatory of Music, will sing solo parts in the Handel oratorio, "The Messiah," to be given by a chorus of 200 voices at the Methodist vespers service Sunday afternoon. Miss Mueller will sing the contralto solos and Miss Farrell the soprano.

Both Miss Mueller and Miss Farrell have established reputations as vocal artists of superior merit who understand thoroughly the tradition and spirit of oratorio singing. They are particularly equipped to sing the Messiah, solo, for both have assisted in the singing of the Handel oratorio several times.

The vespers service will start at 4 o'clock Sunday, an hour earlier than usual.

Barometer Tumbles, But Weather Fails To Change

A fall in the barometer that should have brought a decided change in weather—a hurricane or tornado, had it occurred in the summer, and that may react with another cold wave, occurred between 8 and 10 o'clock Friday morning.

There was no noticeable change in weather conditions yesterday at the time the barometer fell, although it is pointed out that the storm which sent the barometer down may have been traveling high and therefore was not noticed.

Persons who follow weather conditions closely point out that a drop in mercury probably will follow. The temperature this morning was 30 degrees and at 11 o'clock it still was 30.

The last time an abrupt barometer drop was recorded was last summer when a high wind sent the mercury tumbling about 18 degrees in just a few minutes. The drop in temperature was followed by a heavy down pour that lasted several hours.

The forecast for the weekend is increasing cloudiness and probably snow Sunday in the southern portion late tonight. However, the report forecasts not much change in temperature. Winds are expected to be moderate and easterly.

HOLD PLAY TRYOUTS MONDAY FOR FROSH

The Lawrence college chapter of National Collegiate Players will hold tryouts Monday afternoon for a group of freshman players to be presented in January. The tryouts are to be held in the Little Theatre under the direction of Prof. F. T. Cloak, Patsy Molzow, Paul Kozelka, and Charles Watkins.

Plays to be presented are: "The Man who Died at Twelve o'clock," by Paul Green; "Overtones," written by Alice Greenberg; and "God Wins," by K. S. Burgess. All freshmen are eligible to try out for parts in these plays and the cast is strictly limited to members of this class. A large turnout is expected by the Collegiate players, since this is the first opportunity the freshmen have had to take part in any dramatic productions since they entered college.

Wisconsin Weather
Increasing cloudiness, probable snow Sunday, and in south part on late tonight, not much change in temperature.

The "low" which was centered over Wisconsin yesterday morning has moved rapidly eastward and now overlies the upper St. Lawrence valley. It has caused light rain or snow throughout the lake region and northern states and warmer in the New England states. Mostly fair weather prevails over most of the western states this morning and it is much colder in the Mississippi valley and the northwestern states, with sub-zero temperatures reported from the northern Rock Mountains and western Canada. Fair weather, with little change in temperature, is expected in this section tonight, probably followed by snow Sunday.

POLLOCK'S PLAY OF REAL LIFE IS WELL RECEIVED

Rapidity of Scene Changing One of Remarkable Features

Appleton theatergoers enthusiastically received Channing Pollock's epic of the ordinary family, "The House Beautiful," at Lawrence Memorial chapel Friday night. The three-act play, a kaleidoscopic cross section of the lives of two people who build their marriage on idealistic vision, is an interesting and timely study of the interplay of two centuries of Babbitt and family contentment, modern jazz and its rapid pace with symbolic ideals as a thread to the story which occurs wholly within the house made beautiful with memories.

Without the interest of his audience the Pollock play would be a series of fast moving scenes, seemingly without meaning as the scenes skipped to and fro. The play fell into medieval retrospect with the progress of the story. Pollock, the craftsman, interests his audience from the moment the two young lovers in the first scene begin planning their dream house on the barren real estate section with two feet of pine scrub for a view. Through the naturalness of his lines and characters, the play is a study in the art of the stage, the scolding villain and obvious lovers the play becomes a reality. It is more firmly established in the second scene in which the two young people sit dreaming on the imaginary front porch of their own home, planning and talking about the house in the twilight while shadowy figures begin building the home in the background.

The rapidity of the scene changing is one of the remarkable features of the play, each scene transgressing into the next with a brief interlude of darkness and the ticking of the clock to denote the lapse of time. The whole story unfolds the life of these two young Davids from their marriage and planning for their first home through the house warming in the little house with not a single dish and spoon to go around, the arrival of the young son, the hours striving for a family raise in the brokerage business, the election of Archibald, the husband, for mayor of the now grown-up real estate village and his death. The play is a series of incidents in the married life of the two, constantly kept together with the short throw-in scenes depicting their ideals through throw backs to the chivalry of medieval knightdom.

Each of the three acts of the play is an entire unit, except that each time the curtain raises a new period of life is revealed within the West Hills group. The first act covers a period of ten years from the time the house is a dream until it has become a part of Archie, Jennifer and their 10-year old son. It is in this phase of the story that finds her faith in her husband is greater than the gossip of her neighbors. She finds the courage to believe in him in spite of his secret absences from home and after an almost tragic accident to young Archie, she finds that her husband has been working nights to buy her the pine forest on some near-by property.

The second act takes up the story 11 years later in the jazz transition of the present century with the Davids' respectable members of the community, old fashioned in the face of cocktails, freedom and individuality. This act covers the middle span of their life, with the last act centering on the story of Jennifer's growth into a woman who is the center of her husband's life. The entire play repeats itself in one of the scenes here in which Jennifer sits in the twilight, feeling her dead husband's presence by the shadowy memories of their life together portrayed in swift sequence on the balcony background of the stage.

Jennifer Davis, played by Ethel Jentrop, and John Griggs, played by the chief, taking the leading roles of the New York cast. Elbert Baxter, robust and thriving real estate dealer, is played by Homer Barton in a thoroughly Babcock part. Dr. Brink is excellently done by George Oliver Taylor, whose philosophy of life parallels that of the Davids' and who brings the old and new trends of the story together with his words "The world is swinging back to sentiment, to homes and rose gardens."

The supporting cast included John C. King as Guy Starton, wealthy broker; Marjorie Jarecki as Hildah the maid; Alma Brook as Nina Baxter; Phil Van Zandt as Sam Dreyer, an up and coming advertising agent; Mary Alice Collins as Martha Wray; Betty Oakwood as Vivian Baxter who marries young Archie; the part taken by Henry Kiehl as Archie who has grown up and Archie Maddox at the age of 10.

The funeral mass will be held at 8 o'clock Monday morning at St. Sebastian church, Milwaukee, after which the body will be brought to the Schomaker funeral home in this city. It can be viewed there from 12:30 Tuesday noon until 1:30, when a funeral service will be held. Burial will be in St. Joseph cemetery.

MRS. HELENA GLUCKSTEIN
Mrs. Helena Gluckstein, 70, widow of the late Henry Gluckstein and a former resident of Appleton, died Friday morning at St. Joseph hospital, Milwaukee, after a brief illness. Mrs. Gluckstein left Appleton about 12 years ago. Survivors are one son, Leo W. Gluckstein; three daughters, Sister M. Koska, St. Elizabeth hospital, Appleton; Sister M. Roy Swank, two brothers, Dr. Louis German and Dr. Hubert German, Milwaukee; one sister, Mrs. Charles Seil, Milwaukee; and seven grandchildren.

The funeral mass will be held at 8 o'clock Monday morning at St. Sebastian church, Milwaukee, after which the body will be brought to the Schomaker funeral home in this city. It can be viewed there from 12:30 Tuesday noon until 1:30, when a funeral service will be held. Burial will be in St. Joseph cemetery.

MISS ESTELLA TAYLOR
Miss Estella Taylor, 32, a sister of Mrs. R. S. Mitchell, 119 N. Randolph street, died Friday morning in the general hospital at Rochester, N. Y. Miss Taylor, who had been a social worker in Rochester, had spent a year with her sister in this city. Survivors are Mrs. Mitchell a sister in Red Cloud, Neb., and a brother, Edward, Seattle, Wash. The body was brought to Appleton, and funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at Riverside cemetery, with Dr. H. E. Peabody in charge.

Thousands See Santa As He Pays Appleton Visit

Poor old Santa Claus—he's almost a wreck this evening, all because he tried to visit a few minutes with Appleton kiddies and grown ups at the site of the community Christmas tree on College-ave this morning.

The old fellow was brought here by the junior chamber of commerce. If he doesn't come back later in the month it will be because he feels slighted over the rough treatment heaped on him.

Arriving at the city limits over route 41 the old fellow was met by Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and Chief George T. Prim with the police car and a motorcycle escort. Everything went fine until he got to College-ave near the Oneida-st intersection, where some four or five thousand persons had gathered to await his arrival.

There were boy scouts and policemen trying to protect Santa, but he didn't do a bit of good. The folks just swarmed into the street and on to the car and into it and a proposed tour that would have taken Santa to the Armory ended in front of the Christmas tree where Santa's car couldn't move another foot without running down a hundred or more little folks.

Distributes Candy
After talking with the crowd for a few minutes Santa started to distribute his Christmas candy and 1,000 horns. The candy, 100 pounds of kisses, was tossed right and left and the riot that started was a pleasure to behold.

But some of the boys were naughty and there were a lot of them who played hog about the candy and stuffed it into coat pockets or shirts and then went after more. And for the benefit of the little folks who didn't get any, Santa said the naughty boys won't receive presents.

After dispensing a great part of the candy Santa moved over to the Soldiers-sq where he led the folks in Christmas songs and then gave away some more candy.

After the crowd dispersed, many pieces of loose clothing were found. There were rubbers and caps and gloves and shirts spread over the street. Many of these articles are being held at the police station for the owners.

STATE LEGION HEAD REPLIES TO PASTORS ON DRY LAW STAND

Milwaukee (AP)—Ministers of the Methodist church in the La Crosse district are taken to task in the current issue of the Badger Legionaire for a resolution accusing the American legion of favoring repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"The statement of the premise on which the accusation is based is so utterly untrue that one wonders whether it is actuated by intentional malice or inexcusable ignorance," says an article by Dr. C. A. Dawson, state commander.

Dr. Dawson pointed out that a resolution passed by the legion at its Detroit convention did not favor repeal but merely asked that the matter be submitted to the states for a referendum.

The resolution of the pastors' meeting in Tomah, Wis., Sept. 24 and 25, said "we deprecate the action of the American legion... favoring the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as unwise as it is unworthy of our American soldiery."

MACLAREN TO ADDRESS ROTARIANS AT WAUSAU

Dr. J. B. MacLaren will address the Wausau Rotary club Monday noon. He will talk on Crippled Children, and will illustrate his talk with a moving picture film of the Appleton Orthopedic school.

2 BUILDINGS HAVE FORMAL OPENINGS

Crowds Throng Through Irving Zuelke, Appleton State Bank Structures

Crowds from Appleton and Outagamie-co today are visiting the new Irving Zuelke-bldg, corner of College-ave and Oneida-st and the Appleton State Bank-bldg, both of which are observing their formal openings today. The Zuelke-bldg opening will continue Sunday.

Visitors started to appear at both buildings early this morning. The Zuelke-bldg has practically been completed and nearly all the offices and suites are occupied. The State bank building recently was remodeled and new equipment installed.

Afternoon inspection of the bank was permitted from 2:30 to 5:30, and will be continued tonight from 7:30 to 9:30. Carnations are being given the ladies and cigars to the gentlemen.

The Zuelke-bldg program this afternoon featured a musical program on the mezzanine floor. Boy scouts have been acting as guides throughout the day.

JANE ADDAMS SUBMITS TO MAJOR OPERATION

Baltimore—(AP)—Jane Addams of Chicago, social worker and president for 15 years of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, underwent a major operation at Johns Hopkins hospital here today, performed by Dr. Thomas S. Cullen of Baltimore.

The entrance of Miss Addams to the hospital was delayed a week by bronchial trouble, an affliction that has attacked the peace advocate any each winter for the last decade. She is 71 years old and for years her primary interest has been advocacy of the cause of peace throughout the world.

Miss Addams came to Baltimore Wednesday accompanied by her secretary, Miss Mary Rosa Smith, and a group of women. She went directly to the hospital as a patient of Dr.

DUKE MUST WAIT 3 YEARS ERE HE CAN MARRY IN NEW YORK

New York—(AP)—The duke of Manchester and Miss Kathleen Dawes, former English actress, cannot be married in New York state unless they agree to wait three years. And they won't.

The Englishman and Miss Dawes applied for a marriage license yesterday. He gave his age as 55 and Miss Dawes said she was 24. City Clerk Cruise asked the customary question whether either had been married previously. Miss Dawes replied she had not. The duke said he had been divorced on statutory grounds for misconduct by his first wife, the former Miss Helena Zimmermann of Cincinnati.

The final papers were granted in London last Monday. He had no copy of the decree. One is due on the S. S. Olympic next week.

The clerk brought out that a person divorced for misconduct may not marry again in this state until three years have passed.

The couple was surprised. So was Mayor Walker, who was in the city hall waiting to marry them.

The duke and Miss Dawes probably will be married next month in Havana, Cuba, where he owns a home.

HIGH COURT CONSIDERS PHONE CASE INJUNCTION

Madison—(AP)—The appeal of the public Service commission from an injunctive order holding invalid the new regulation law which permits imposing investigation costs upon public utilities that are investigated was taken under advisement by the supreme court today following arguments.

The Wisconsin Telephone company secured the injunction in the court of Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann of Dane-co after its refusal to pay the initial bill for the cost of investigation in the state wide telephone rate case.

Cullen. The operation was decided upon the following day.

Wednesday evening Miss Addams was informed that she and Mr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university had been awarded the 1931 nobel peace prize.

INCREASED DRY LAW ARRESTS IN DISTRICT

In the number of persons arrested by prohibition agents in the eastern district of Wisconsin is noted in the quarterly report of United States Commissioner Floyd E. Jenkins.

In Commissioner Jenkins' jurisdiction, 329 dry law cases, in many of which more than one defendant is involved, were started in the three months ending Nov. 30. The increased arrests is attributed largely to an increased number of prohibition agents operating in the district.

THE IRVING ZUELKE BUILDING

The vision and the courage which motivated Irving Zuelke in the construction of his splendid office building formally opened to the public today can be best appreciated by visiting the building. It stands as a monument to Mr. Zuelke's faith in Appleton and its people, and is a memorial to a purpose tenaciously clung to in the face of trying business conditions.

Any city is fortunate to have a man of the vision and the ability to capitalize on this vision that Mr. Zuelke has shown. Determined to erect a building that Appleton could be proud of as a community he spared neither time nor energy nor expense to achieve his purpose.

The Zuelke building is distinctly a community asset. Not only is it an imposing addition to the city's business section but it is an inspiration to its citizens. Constructed at a time when so-called conservative businessmen were tightening their belts and pursuing a policy of watchful waiting, it has done much to buoy the spirits of our people and keep alive their faith in the ultimate recovery of prosperity. If this enterprise accomplished nothing else it was tremendously worthwhile.

Mr. Zuelke deserves the congratulations of his fellow townsmen on the completion of his enterprise. It was a big job well done.

IT WON'T WORK

The radio commission has refused to renew a broadcasting license to a station in Los Angeles conducted from a church of which one Rev. Robert Schuler is pastor, basing its decision upon the frequent abuse of free speech resorted to by this minister, well known on the coast as a brimstone reformer.

The circuit court of appeals has upheld the radio commission and the matter is on its way to the supreme court for final decision in laying down or blazing a way to a new code of law which in reality is applying old principles to a new situation.

Mr. Schuler who is preyed upon by a desire to attack nearly everyone and everything in religion, politics, the courts, etc., found an appreciative audience because people like to hear someone attacked.

But his case will show how the militant reformer haunted by his growing ego, drunk with the thought that somehow the Almighty has gifted him with the power of prescience, may nearly wreck tried and age-old institutions that are otherwise known for their virtues and dependability.

One morning the Los Angeles papers announced the arrest of a theatre magnate called Pantages, described by one reporter as "a greasy little multimillionaire," whose wealth had affected his reason as the limelight of publicity toppled Schuler's. The charge was criminal assault on a 19 year old girl.

The evidence, and the circumstances appeared to make a strong case against Pantages. In the ordinary course he probably would have been convicted and duly sentenced to prison.

But fortunately for Pantages, Mr. Schuler conceived it to be his heaven-sent duty to light the pathway of justice with a flaming torch. He aroused the community over the radio against Pantages with the charge of his guilt and warned Jast Pantages bribe his way through the trial, indicating that somehow by Sherlock Holmes methods or spirit rappings, he, Schuler, had ascertained such a purpose.

After the jury was selected, sworn, and the evidence started Schuler declared that Pantages had a man on the jury, naming one who was known to occasionally take a drink. That was sufficient evidence of bribery. To Schuler's poor distorted mind one whose lips touched alcohol would surely countenance any sort of vice or crime, however bestial or revolting.

Picture a jury trying to fairly try a case on the evidence with a man shouting over the air that if they found Pantages not guilty they were themselves bribed.

Schuler didn't want to let the court and jury try Pantages. Had he not himself already tried him? Did he not know he was guilty? First hand? Of course not. That wasn't necessary. He figured it all out without ever hearing or seeing a witness.

In due course Pantages was convicted by this jury and sentenced to 50 years imprisonment. Schuler purred. To himself at least he was the hero of the hour. It was neither the prosecutor nor the evidence that convicted Pantages. It was Schuler. But there are courts, and as Justice Holmes once said in reference to another outrage, "No such thing will ever be permitted to stand while this court sits."

Pantages claimed a new trial on appeal because the atmosphere was so charged with prejudice against him that a fair decision was impossible. He won a new trial for an error of the trial court in refusing to admit certain evidence.

By the time of his second trial the people of Los Angeles seemed to have started the other way. They may have become tired and disgusted with Schuler. The trouble about these swings of the pendulum of public opinion is that people usually get as angry, unreasonable and intemperate in one extreme as the other. With most people the second trial of Pantages degenerated into a determination of whether or not a wild-eyed, unstable and irrational reformer could be permitted to wreck constitutions, laws, fair trials and everything else so as to increase the emoluments of mountebankery. Pantages wasn't on trial half as much as Schuler.

When the next jury freed Pantages, as it promptly did, the court could not subdue the wild applause of the gathered crowd.

Thus did Rev. Schuler, the reformer, help a probably guilty man to escape justice.

BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS

Each year of the twenty-five since the organization movement got under way the little special seals have been offered to the public at this holiday time.

When everybody believed that tuberculosis was hereditary and there was no use trying to fight it or cure it, even the small beginnings which marked the start of the great battle against it were hard to make. Since then the little seals, wearing a new face each year, have persistently carried the message that the dread disease is preventable and curable to every village and cross-roads in the country, so that today few people do not know that early diagnosis, proper treatment and care save many lives annually.

During the quarter century of work which the seal commemorates, the ravages of tuberculosis have been cut down by half; more than 500 sanatoria have been built; clinics have been established for early diagnosis; the tuberculin test and X-ray have been perfected to make early detection more certain. Methods of educating the public itself against this disease have been made effective.

A great deal still remains to be done. Tuberculosis is still a great public enemy—the leading cause of death between the ages of 15 and 45, and a particularly serious menace to the health of young people entering strenuous high school and college days, or the various employments. Money is needed to finance the battle. We can't declare a moratorium because of dull times. In fact, hard times increases the need of watchfulness. Our children must be protected.

A large proportion of the money raised by the seal sale in Appleton, and all over the country, remains right in the community where it is given and is used to meet the special needs there. Effective work has been done and it is hoped that it may be continued and expanded to include summer camp, fresh air school and other needed additions to the present program.

The trial of Harry Powers, America's Blue-beard, finished up in a hurry. The papers told us that he was unmoved by the jeers of the 1,200 who jammed the courthouse to hear the trial. (They should start charging admission to these things and pay off the public debt.) Anyway, it's not surprising that Powers was unmoved by the jeers. Since he's to play the main part in the scaffold scene pretty soon, a few jeers more or less don't make much difference.

A bigshot columnist pictures the plight of an average citizen of not long from now. He tells about the citizen, gone daffy from tax paying of every type from cigarettes to stamps and in between, jumping out the window, muttering as he goes, "Here's one thing the government can't tax us for."

And then the government comes along and takes half of his estate for inheritance tax.

And on People Who Say "Oke"

But the government, despite the fact that it's considering taxes on almost everything, is passing up some swell opportunities. There could be a tax on people who ask "Is it cold enough for you?" on people who park their cars in the middle of the street, on people who stop at a College avenue green light to hold conversation with a pedestrian, on people who send comic Christmas cards, on people who ask you to try out their home brew, on any Congressman who tries to introduce a new law.

DENMARK RECEIVES A JOLT

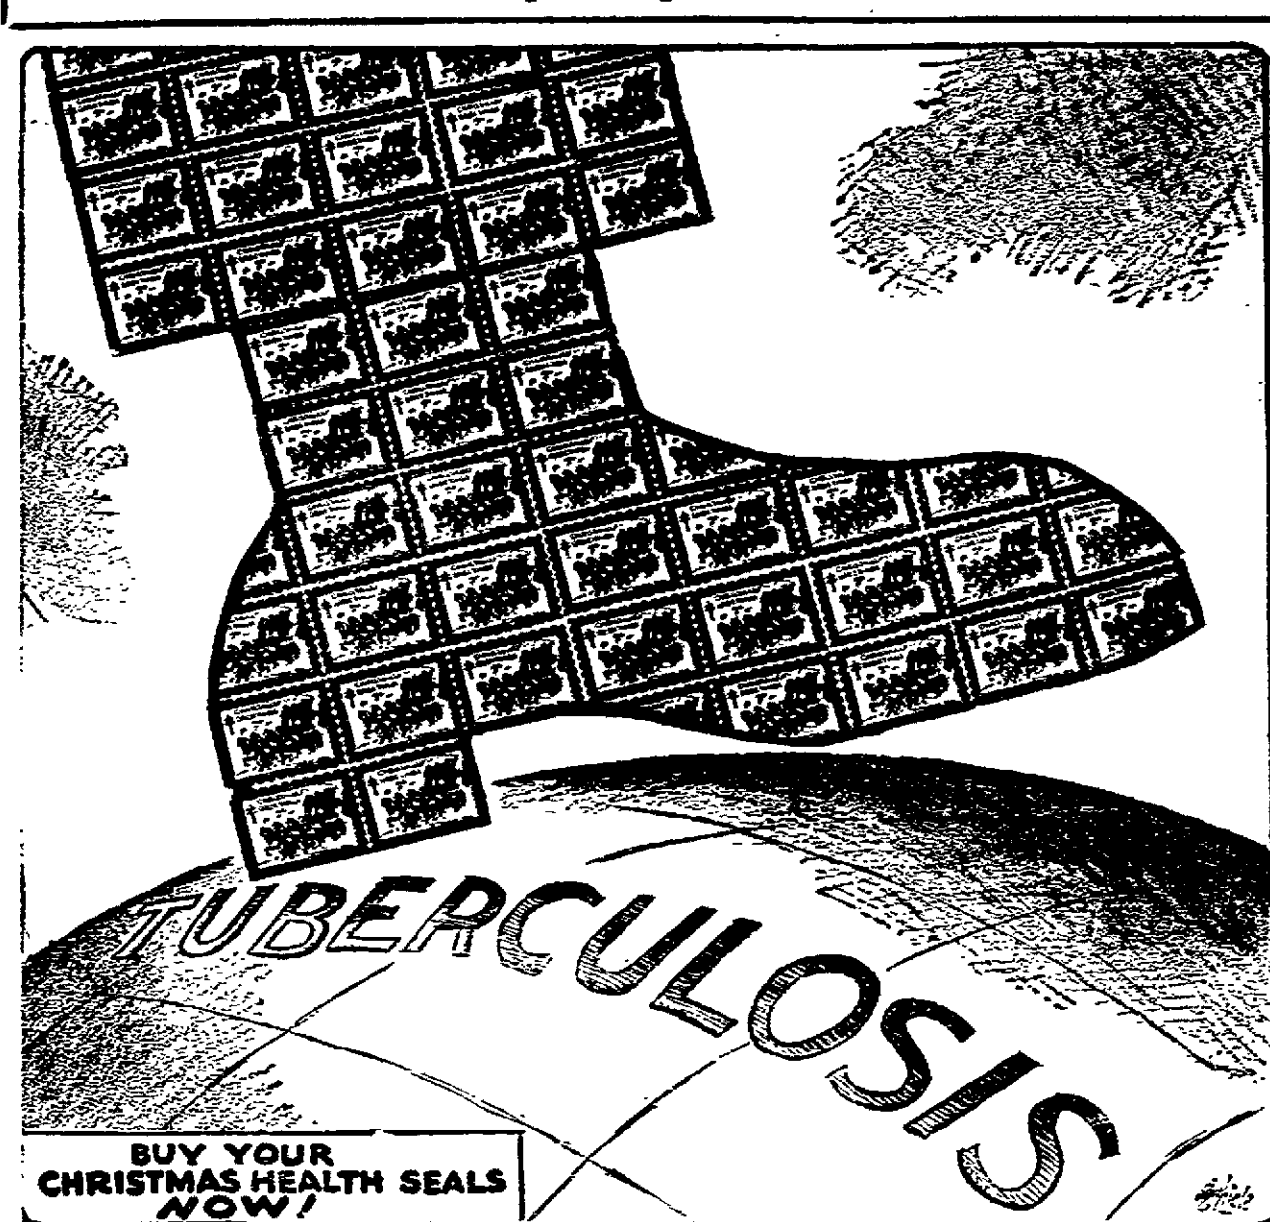

Out of Denmark comes the report that Danish farmers are scared stiff about British tariff proposals. Poor Danish farmers; they are in danger of becoming victims of their own efficiency. Already they have been discriminated against by regulations in Germany and France providing quota restrictions upon consumption of imported food stuffs. And Danish bacon, butter and eggs must find market outside of Denmark. There are not enough Danes to eat all that Danish farms can produce.

But everyone knows England guesses that English folks will not be deprived of their Danish bacon and eggs. If they are it will be too bad. For it is a striking feature of every English food market that genuine English meats, poultry and dairy products always command higher prices but never are in sufficient quantity to supply the demand. Denmark always has helped out. The Danish goods are of high quality and they are cheap. If these are shut out, the "home-grown" stuff might be expected to reach prohibition prices.

With the Danish anxiety as a text and the domestic free trade of the United States as an illustration, any intelligent European might preach a stirring sermon on the necessity of a "United States of Europe."—Detroit News.

PURE? THE CITY WATER HAS TO BE PURE.

I went back in '93, when you and I were young Maggie, a man died in Ashland, Wisconsin, in fact several died there in 1893-1894 from typhoid fever. But one of the victims left a widow who didn't like it at all, and so she brought suit against the water company and obtained $5,000 damages for the typhoid infection was traced to polluted water.

The law assumes that any corporate body or private company which supplies water for human consumption must exercise every reasonable precaution to keep the water pure and free from pollution. The Ashland case is by no means the only one in which this principle has been recognized by the courts. It happens to be the first case of the kind and hence a precedent.

In the city of Mankato, Minnesota a person named Kever obtained an award of $5,000 damages in 1910 because of a death from typhoid fever caused by pollution of the water supply.

In 1920 there was a typhoid epidemic in Pittsburgh, California, and the California supreme court awarded nearly $33,000 in damages to 19 plaintiffs who had suffered from the disease.

In a typhoid epidemic in Olean, N. Y., three years ago there were over 200 cases and 13 deaths, and the city had to vote a bond issue of $50,000 in order to pay the claims.

This typhoid epidemic in Montreal three or four years ago was traced to infected milk which, through somebody's criminal carelessness, passed through the pasteurization plant without being pasteurized. If the city health department had charge of the pasteurization of milk for sale in the city, then it would seem that all the people who suffered from typhoid from using that milk would have a good claim for damages.

The contractor designated a spring where his workmen were to get their drinking water. The water looked clear and tasted fine and was pure and cold, so the contractor assumed it was as pure as spring water has always been assumed to be. Several of the men drinking the water presently came down with typhoid. The contractor's profit on the job was soon eaten up paying off judgments.

Some day, I expect, it will be possible to go to court and collect suitable damages from the bird who hands you the oil under cover of a "slight cold." But not until the present legion of old fogey doctors dies off, for altogether too many of the old fossils still believe, if they do not openly argue, that the germ or infection factor is only incidental and the main cause of whatever respiratory infection you contract is exposure to cold or wet. That is, they argue that way when the victim is not a member of their own family. If one of the doctor's own household comes down with the oil he gets very angry if you try to tell him maybe the youngster got his feet wet, when he knows perfectly well the poor lad caught it in school, and why the blazes don't teachers send children home when they come with their coughs and sneezes.

I am told there is a . . . institute here in . . . Would you advise me to go there about my trouble? (Mrs. R. M.)

Answer—No. I advise you to go to some doctor who has the moral courage to practice under his own name. These "climics," "institutes" and all similar impersonal huddles are rackets, no matter how well known or well advertised the various members of the gang may be. This is my opinion.

Enlarged Turbinates
 As diathermy is so successful in the extirpation of tonsils, cannot the same method be used for treating or shrinking thickened turbinates in the nose? C. O.

Answer—Yes, many physicians use it for that purpose with very satisfactory results.

Cataract
 Father has cataract on one eye.

Old doctor book says use blood root, hog's lard. . . (B. E. T.)

Answer—The cataract is IN the eye not on it. Cataract is a clouding or opacity of the crystalline lens. It would be tragic to experiment with any old doctor book suggestions. If your father's case is not suitable for surgical treatment, the doctor will advise the next best course for him.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

WEE Clowry said, "I'll try my hand at walking on that rope, I'm grand!" "Oh, no, you won't," snapped Scouty. "You are not as good as that. You'd do it only as a bluff and lose your balance, sure enough. Then everybody here would laugh to see you fall down flat."

"He's right," said Coppy. Keep your seat. I'd rather see some other treat. The dogs are putting on a show. It is not up to us. Now every thing will be all right if you'll be still and just sit tight. Most every time you make a move it starts a general fuss."

"All right. I won't give you a treat," said Clowry. "I will keep my seat." Just then a dog announced jumped upon a chair and cried, "Next on the program we will hear a band. 'Twill fill you all with cheer. If, when they start, the music's not so good, don't run and hide."

"You see, they have to tune up first and that's when music sounds the worst. They'll shortly be in proper key and then 'twill be real sweet." A great big horn then blasted loud. It rather scared the circus crowd. Poor Clowry was so startled that he near fell off his seat.

"Oh, look!" cried Coppy. "See that drum. I'll bet that dog can make it hum." "Be quiet," answered Scouty. "Now they're going to start to play. Only wish we had a chance to step out on the ground and dance. But this is just a circus, so we can't do that today."

And then came merry harmony. It was as pretty as could be. A big horn tooted, "ta, ta, ta." The bass drum went "thump! thump!" And then the skinny side trombone sent forth a funny wailing tone. One more the drum boomed loudly and this made the Tynmites jump.

Today's Anniversary

GERMANS MASS ATTACK

On Dec. 12, 1917, the Germans made a mass attack west of Cambrai and gained a foothold in the British front line of 300 yards. The Germans struck between Bullecourt and Queant, 20 miles west of Cambrai, but were repulsed by General Byng after they had gained the 500 yards of British trenches.

President Wilson issued a formal proclamation declaring a state of war against Austria-Hungary and outlining plans for dealing with Austro-Hungarians in the United States.

On the Italian front the Italians resumed their attacks in the Col della Deretta and Col dell'Orso regions. Germans stormed Monte Spioncola and defenses in the Calcin Valley.

B-1's forces advanced their lines northeast of Jerusalem.

The Cuban House of Representatives passed a resolution calling for a declaration of war on Austria-Hungary.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Harry Hubert is listed officially on Uncle Sam's payroll as cashier of the United States treasury.

His job is to receive all government deposits and send records of them to the bookkeeping and war-rants division for the proper notation and distribution.

Quite a job in itself!—But Hubert has another job about which few persons know. In fact, it is doubtful whether there is any public record which outlines the scope of it.

Perhaps as good a way as any to describe it is to call Hubert the custodian of the repository of absolute truth in the treasury—or, more simply, "keeper of the conscience fund."

To illustrate, not so long ago a world war veteran wrote to him, enclosing a small check. It was for two army shirts which the soldier explained he had made away with in wartime. The matter had been troubling him ever since. A high government official sent him $2 with the explanation that he saw a filing case, worth about 50 cents at a government auction sale. He did not have time to wait for the auction, so he took the case. The $2 was to fix it up with his conscience.

There are numerous payments of two cents each, probably received, of a second use of a postage stamp.

This job—"keeper of the conscience fund"—dates back as far as 1811. At that time $5 came in with much secrecy to the treasury. No one knew what to do with it, but before the year had ended $245 had been added to the $5 in the same manner.

It was 16 years before another contribution was received, but now money comes in regularly.

1916 A Good Year

The year 1916 was the most successful of all—more than $55,000 coming in. One man had a $30,000 conscience. No one knows who he was, but it is thought that his restitution had to do with dutiable articles brought in under cover. The most common "conscience" is thought to be connected with income tax falsifications.

A great many contributors to the repository of absolute truth come from people who sign their names. A larger number, however, are anonymous.

Uncle Sam guards jealously the former. He gives them credit for their desire to get the matter off their minds. Incidentally, the repository of absolute truth has fared rather badly in the last year or so. The fiscal year that closed last June showed slightly over $6,000 profit. Perhaps those who should kick in with conscience money are waiting until times are better.

The Tax Policy

Editor Post-Crescent—The stand you are taking in regards to taxing capital and income too heavy. I will say, that capital and incomes are the fruit of Labor and as it is the fruit of Labor, therefore it must go back to labor who helped to produce it. Labor and capital must work hand in hand for good of both, but capital must not have the preference. Capital has no feeling but man has. If capital has been taxed too heavy, I would like to ask you how it comes that former Gov. Kohler and a good many others have accumulated $5 and 40 millions during the last 15 or 20 years. It has always been the cry of the wealthy, that they have been taxed too heavy.

Banks over flowing with cash and millions want a days work, and thousands are losing their homes in which they have invested their lives savings and some of them broke a cracker in two so they might have something for the next day in order to have a home some day.

Yes the rich are getting richer, and the poor are getting poorer.

BALANCE SHEETS SERVE AS PICTURE OF FIRM'S STATUS

One of Vital Factors Is Ratio Between Assets and Liabilities

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1931, by Condé Press)
New York.—Bringing to a close the series on balance sheet analysis we may summarize the important points for examination. In the first place, it must be borne in mind that the balance sheet is a picture of the company's position as of a specific date. It throws no light on what may have happened between the day the figures were made up and the date they were published. There is always a lag between the two.

Secondly, the vital thing is not the total of assets but the ratio between current assets and current liabilities. It is this ratio which indicates the ability of the corporation to meet its immediate obligations, to pay interest on its bonds and dividends on its stocks. The ratio should be more favorable with an industrial than with a public utility. The latter can operate on a smaller working capital than the former as a rule.

Thirdly, under current assets what are known as quick assets, that is to say cash and marketable securities, are of more value in interpreting the outlook than inventories and bills receivable. Whenever cash items alone are sufficient to cover all current liabilities the strongest possible condition is indicated.

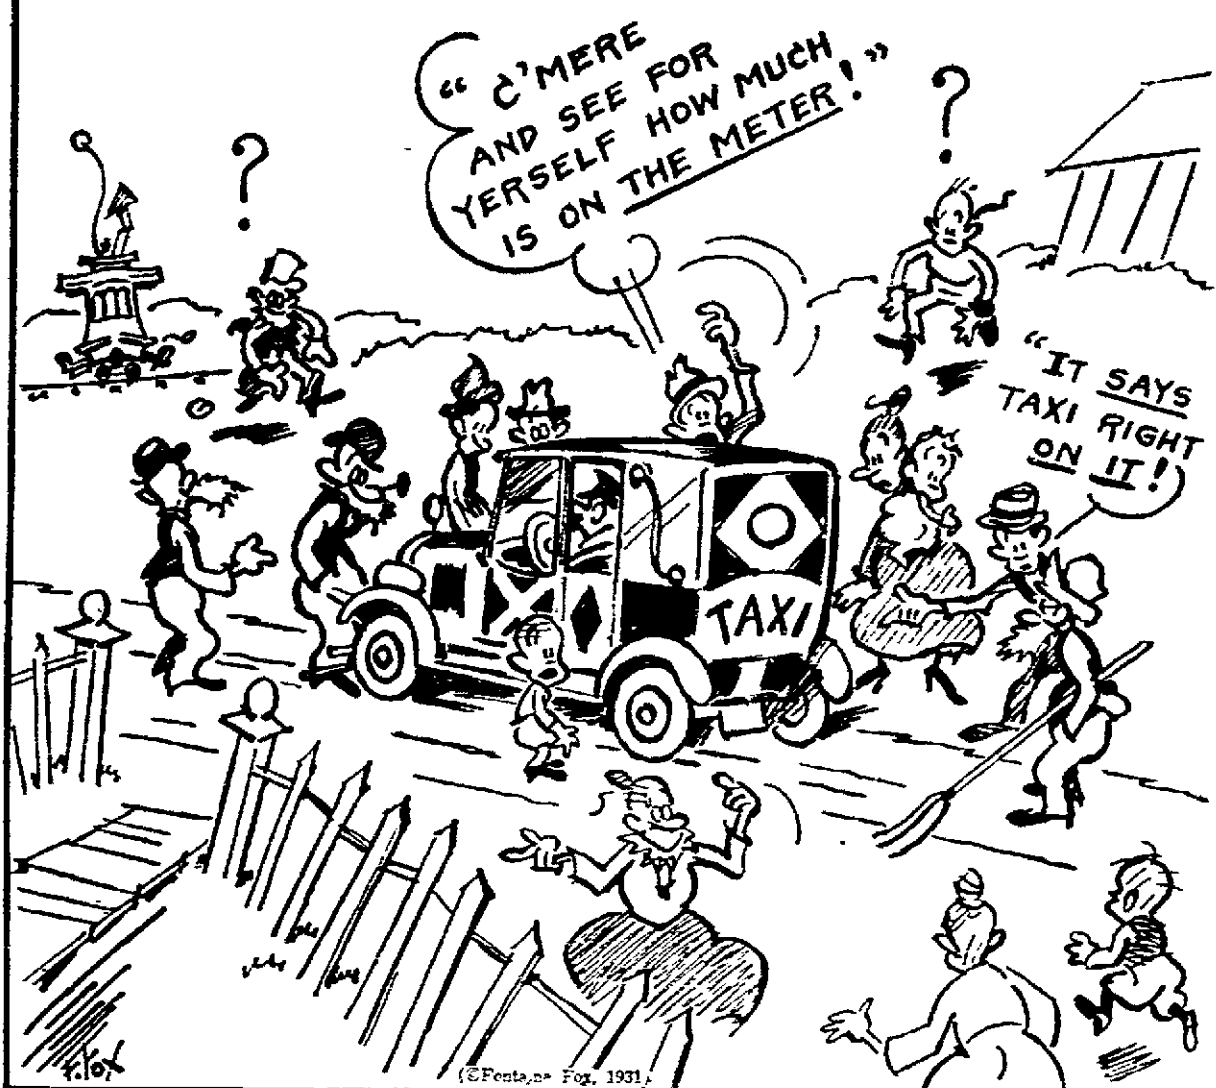

Fourthly, it is not to be assumed because a company shows an impregnable financial setup that it is necessarily making money. Operating at a profit and solvency are two entirely different things. It is even possible for a company to report good earnings in its income statement and make an unsatisfactory showing in its balance sheet.

If the good earnings continue long enough, other things being equal, they will be reflected in the balance sheet but that often takes a good deal of time. Conversely, if earnings are consistently poor they will impair a balance sheet position eventually but that also is sometimes long postponed.

Finally, the capital setup which always appears on the liability side reveals the effect on earnings per share or decreases in net income.

RECOMMEND 5 BOOKS ON ALUMNI READING LIST

Five books, among them a Pulitzer prize winner and "Living Philosophies," are recommended by Lawrence college this month in its alumni reading list.

The Pulitzer prize play is "Allison's" the variation being the greater the smaller the ratio of stock capitalization to funded debt.

"House" by Susan Glaspell, a character play of genuine emotional intensity. "Living Philosophies," the philosophies of 22 representative modern thinkers is an interesting and stimulating philosophical symposium.

"As We Were" by Edward F. Benson gives peepshow glimpses of English life in the later Victorian age. The book sparkles with flashes of critical insight and good humor.

The knottiest problem in modern economics is stated with rare lucidity for the layman in "America Weighs Her Gold" by James H. Rogers, and "Mexico: A Study of Two Americas" by Stuart Chase and Marian Tyler is a thought-provoking comparison of two economic systems, handicraft and machine.

LITHOGRAPHY IS SHOWN IN DISPLAY

Exhibit Traces Process from
Artist's Sketch to Finished
Product

A display illustrating the complete lithographic process, from the original artist's sketch to the finished lithograph is now on display in the reading room of the Lawrence college library.

The process is essentially of the original sketch which is traced onto a thin, transparent paper, from which it is transferred to a heavy stone block and then to a metal plate. The process is then completed by the artist's sketch on the stone block.

The lithographic process is composed of a series of steps which can be described in water form an ink that may be used in a pen on the stone or applied with a brush for solid blocks.

When the sketch is drawn on the soapstone block, the carbonate of lime absorbs the greasy materials in the drawing crayon. Upon completion of the drawing, the block is washed with water and the greasy surface remains saturated in the stone. The ink is then dampened with water, the surface being covered with a thin layer of water. The ink is then worked by the hand of the printer. The block is then placed in a press where the ink is transferred to the paper and the printing process is complete.

The exhibition is on display for a short time and all wishing to see it can do so at once, going to the library.

PUBLIC DEFENDER MAY BE NAMED BY COUNTY

Madison — F. J. Danahy may decide to have a public defender.

District Attorney J. J. Danahy is an opinion that the county should have a public defender. He said a public defender could be had by having the county board of supervisors pass a resolution to that effect. The law of the state provides that if all the judges of the county would agree to have a public defender, the court could appoint one.

At the November session of the county board, a resolution was adopted requesting the board to consider the possibility of having a public defender to serve the county and to eliminate some of the costs now expended on attorney's fees for indigent persons.

The law, Danahy said, gives the county board no authority to appoint a public defender or to designate who shall represent an indigent. That power rests entirely with the court in which the defendant is prosecuted.

But, he said, since the defendant has no choice of counsel, if the judges would agree on one man for a year the matter would be settled.

SAYS 28 IS IDEAL AGE FOR MAN TO MARRY

Milwaukee — F. J. Danahy says the ideal age for a man to marry, in the opinion of the Rev. Andrew Deen of St. Francis seminary, is 28. For complete happiness a man should be eight years older than his wife, he said in observations before a recent luncheon of the Columbus luncheon here.

By the time a man is 28, he should have a nest egg large enough to start a home, the pastor said.

"One of the reasons for economic distress is that too many families have been started without sufficient finances," he added. "Why should a man go into the biggest enterprise of his life without a dollar? That is one of the follies of the age."

Just ONE Question..

"HOW GOOD ARE THEY?"—THAT'S WHAT
SMOKERS WANT TO KNOW ABOUT CIGARETTES

SMOKERS, nowadays, aren't taking things for granted. They're shopping around... asking questions.

Old man habit has been discarded... forgotten. "How good is it?"... that's what they want to know about any cigarette they smoke.

"How good is it?" Brother, you put your finger right on it!

You want a cigarette that's milder. You want a cigarette that tastes better. You want a pure cigarette. And above all, you want cigarettes that satisfy.

Now when you say that, you're talking Chesterfield's language—none other!

IT STARTS with fine tobacco. Chesterfield buyers are experts in the art of judging quality leaf. They can spot the finest tobacco in any country... and they won't take anything else.

You'll find the same painstaking care... the same skillful handling... in the curing, the blending, and the cross-blending.

Blended and cross-blended... that's Chesterfield! And what a difference it makes in the way it smokes and tastes!

FROM field to package, Chesterfields are protected by the strictest purity standards; the most modern sanitary manufacturing methods.

They're rolled in the finest, whitest paper... that burns without taste or odor. Wrapped in a clean, attractive package... neat, fresh-looking; moisture-tight... but easy to open.

And delivered as fast as they're made... from 3 big factories... to every cigarette counter in the land.

THAT'S the story of why Chesterfields satisfy. That's the reason they're milder... that's why they taste better. Light up... and answer your own question!

"No question about it - they really Satisfy"

Girls Under Age In Need Of Chaperone

BY ANGELO PATRI
This is a restless age and Youth chafes at our restraining hands. Here is a child of fifteen years rebelling against her parents' decree that a chaperone shall accompany her when she goes to a dance that takes her from home and keeps her out until morning.

"I am fifteen. I am as big as most girls are at eighteen. I am a Junior in high school. I like to dance and twice a month there are dances to which the boys and girls like to go. I am popular with the boys and of course want to accept their invitations to dance but my parents spoil everything by insisting that whenever we go any distance that a chaperone go with me in the motor car and stay in the dance room while I dance. None of the other girls have a chaperone and I cannot see why my parents can't trust me when other parents trust their children. I am not a little girl any more but they insist upon treating me as if I were. What do you think about it?"

I think a girl of fifteen ought to be in bed every night by nine o'clock especially when she is in high school. I think that dances and the like, interrupt a child's growth, physical and mental, and do little good. But this child of fifteen is not the usual child. She is full grown. She is someone who is as mature as ever she will be. Our artificial society keeps her a child when nature has made her a woman. The struggle that this brings between the child and her parents is keen and fraught with suffering to both. There is cause for their anxiety, there is justification for the girl's longing to be free to associate with the boys. Some thing must be done for both and the parents' solution was the chaperone.

The best we can do for our children is to teach them sex truths as they need them, throughout the period of their growth. By the time the children arrive at adolescence our teaching is over along with our authority. We have to depend now upon the character growth of the child, upon his and her power of self control and understanding. The young people who need chaperones usually find a way of escaping them. But the precociously developed girl is in a more difficult place. She has not had sufficient experience with life to enable her to protect herself. She hears what we say but it has little meaning. The boys with whom she goes to the dances are older than she. They are closer to twenty, some of them over twenty, and that is what makes things difficult. The girl is in one phase of growth and they, usually are in another. When the development is even in the boys and girls one knows what to expect and provides for it, but when it is as uneven as that which exists between a girl of fifteen, however big for her age, and a young man of twenty odd, the chaperone must provide the balance. And, my little-big girl of fifteen, why are you in such a hurry to go so short a journey? You will arrive at full womanhood before you know it, and your childhood will have vanished, never to return. Have a little patience with those who want to save you pain.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

TEETH and Your Health

This is the Ninth of a series of articles published by the Outagamie Dental Society. Readers are invited to send in their questions. They will be answered by qualified experts of the Dental Society.

Dental Misconception

That dental work should not be done during pregnancy.
The long, tedious and exacting dental operations should not be done during the later months of pregnancy. All cavities and developing gum tissue disease should be given immediate attention. The mouth should be placed in as good a condition as possible by a dentist during the early months. Infected teeth may then be extracted.

That every child costs the mother a tooth.
Lack of dental attention is in a large measure responsible for the breaking down of dental tissue during pregnancy. The idea that no dental work should be done during this time, together with the belief that decay and loss of teeth is inevitable, has no doubt been responsible for this misconception.

That if there is not enough calcium to form the bone and the teeth of the unborn child, the teeth of the mother are decalcified to make up the deficiency.
It must be borne in mind that the teeth during pregnancy always decay first on the outside. In those places most susceptible to decay. This is the part of the tooth farthest from the blood supply. If teeth were called upon to supply calcium for the unborn child they would be attacked from the inside first, because that portion is most accessible to the blood stream. This never happens. It does not seem logical that nature should go about it in the roundabout way of breaking down tooth structure by means of the saliva, to be swallowed and then taken up by the blood stream in the intestines. A glass of milk and any average diet surely contain more calcium than a tooth. Animals are known to go thru frequent pregnancies without loss of tooth substance. Even the domesticated dog with a litter of five or six puppies shows no tooth destruction during this time.

That diet during pregnancy can have little to do with the teeth of the child because the child does not get teeth until he is at least six months old.
Tooth formation begins about 60 days after conception, fully seven months before the child is born. Nearly all of the crowns of baby teeth are already formed at birth and the first molar of the permanent set is beginning to form. The diet of the mother during the whole of this period must consist of food that has an adequate amount of tooth-building substances in it, particularly calcium and certain vitamins.

This article will be concluded in the tenth of a series of articles by the Outagamie Dental Society to be published on December 19th.

FOOT HEALTH

By GEORGE C. DAME

CHILDREN'S FEET SHOULD BE CAREFULLY WATCHED

Great care should be exercised in the selection of shoes and stockings for the growing child, that they may be of sufficient length and width to allow for the natural expansion of the feet. A child's foot grows very rapidly so it is best to purchase footwear a bit larger than is immediately necessary. Nature must have its course in the development of every joint and muscle. Do not run the risk of hindering this natural development. Many mothers have unfortunately crippled their children's feet for life by endeavoring to keep their feet small and "snuggly-looking."

"Over sizing must not be overdone. However, as 'clodhoppers' are just as ruinous to feet as shoes that are too small. In scientific shoe fitting it is important to have children's shoes checked after being worn a month so that minor weakness can be corrected before they develop into major troubles.

Hundreds of parents are well aware of the misery which neglected feet can bring. Give your child's feet the attention they deserve, and help your little one to avoid the troubles you have had. If your child's shoes wear out in peculiar ways; if he has weak ankles or feet; if he complains about his feet — by all means find out the trouble. Records indicate that foot troubles may even retard progress in school.

Readers of the Post-Crescent who would like to know whether or not their children's (or their own) feet are normal, or who would like to consult about weak feet, are invited to make use of the special equipment, and talk to the specially trained personnel at —

DAME'S FOOT SHOP
203 W. College Ave. Appleton

Up-to-date shoe stores are equipped with X-ray machines that show just how strong (or weak) feet are. Dame's Foot Shop has used the X-ray machine in fitting shoes for over 9 years, being the first shoe shop in Appleton to have this modern way of checking the fitting qualities of shoes.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"RAN down the road," Ruth Bradley's words hung in the stillness that followed as the car went on out into the country now. Then the girl spoke again. "I think Sally told me I had gone flat. Isn't it . . . rather awful of me to talk like this about my own sister?"

"It will do you good to talk to someone. And as for being your sister," she may be related to you but she certainly isn't interested in you."

"Sally had just loaned me the golden slippers. She said that they were hers. My check didn't buy them. She used some money of her own. And so I knew I had to be careful. I went running down the road . . ."

Sue had to read between the lines of the rest of the story, for Ruth made it brief.

She had gone running down the road sobbing under her breath, wondering how she could ever face any of the people who had seen her do the crazy, barbaric dance. She had called herself dozens of names for daring to think that she could be light and graceful. She took off Sally's slippers and carried them. She was afraid they would be scratched.

"Oh what got into me, what got into me?" she moaned. "How did I ever do it?"

A car slowed down as it passed. Waited.

Then a friendly voice spoke, as she came along.

"May I give you a lift? I'm going into town and the road wasn't made for walking."

"Oh-h" She had come nearer. "You were at the party, were you not? I danced with you once?"

"You did. Climb in. I hunted for you after you did your stunt."

Ruth had obeyed meekly. She didn't know that there was something mysteriously attractive about her with the dark hair falling rebelliously against her oval face. She tossed the hair away, and her eyes were dark and brooding.

"I was running away from the party," she said. "I hated it. I went . . . because I had to. I took off my slippers and carried them because the heels tripped me." It was a lie and she knew it. She had removed them because they were Sally's and Sally would complain if they were scratched. Some remnant of pride wouldn't let her tell that. But she made no effort to put them on again.

The man had laughed. She noticed that he was a little older than most of the men whom her sister knew. He had a nice face. She thought she would like him. Only he was laughing at her, of course. Every-one was.

"Who is Sally?" the man asked.

"You mean you don't know her?" Ruth was surprised. He might just as well have said that he had never heard of Cleopatra or Helen of Troy. But it was reassuring. Maybe Sally wasn't so popular.

The man's next words explained. "I've been in town about a week. That's probably why. This is my first social event. That's the reason I don't know the goddess, I suppose. I'm Dale Courtney, manager of the new Palace Theater. Come in some time and I'll give you passes." Then he changed his tone. Grew serious.

"I watched you and I followed you on purpose tonight."

NEXT: Dale Courtney's reason for following Ruth.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vance

SHOULD TAKE WIFE INTO CONSIDERATION WHEN LARGE EXPENSE IS INVOLVED

Dear Virginia Vance: My wife and I both work to keep our home together. She has a steady job almost as good as mine. Recently I bought a car, paying so much down, and so much per month, on the installment plan. I thought it would give my wife pleasure and planned it as a surprise for her. She refuses to ride in it, saying that people in our circumstances cannot afford to keep up a car, and that I should never have bought it. Shall I give it up in order to keep peace? I will lose money if I do this. My relatives and some of hers advise me to stand up for myself.

J. A.: If your wife is earning half of the family income she ought not to be treated to surprises of this nature. What affects the family income affects her, naturally—and she should have some say as to whether such an important purchase is wise or not.

Perhaps she's right in saying that people in your circumstances can't afford to keep up a car. In another part of your letter you detail expense which would indicate that you had a very small margin of saving. Indeed when garage and incidental expenses have been paid, what's the use of saddling yourself with a new debt when your combined incomes aren't doing much more than keeping the wolf from the door?

Since the surprise has failed in its major purpose—that of giving pleasure to the lady of the house, it would seem better to take a loss and end the matter for once and all. Remember that you're only a partner—you're not the boss of the whole works—and if the other partner decides that rigid economies are necessary, you've got to fall in with her views. In a household like yours, compromise is necessary—and plenty of it.

Undergo Mental Overhauling
Dear Miss Vance: What is the matter with me? I have lots of friends both boys and girls who tell me that I am beautiful and make a fuss about me but I haven't any dates. Nobody ever takes me out. I can't seem to act a pose in any way. I'm perfectly natural and don't know how to be affected. I usually say,

TO REMOVE BLACKHEADS, STEAM FACE

BY ALICIA HART

It is almost a moot question whether to steam or not to steam your face.

The advocates of the "not to steam" school argue that steaming makes for flabby skins. Certainly too frequent steaming is likely to do that.

But, if you have blackheads, steaming the face is an excellent way to soften the skin preparatory to extracting the little worriers.

Never try to dig out blackheads without softening the skin some way, and steaming is certainly the best way.

Never steam your face so long that you feel burning up. Take it easy. Place a towel over your head and around the edge of the bowl of hot water and bend over so that the steam strikes you where you need it.

Often steaming the face does more than soften the skin. It opens up the pores so that the blackheads are much more easily extracted.

There are little gadgets made especially for pressing out blackheads. If you use that kind of an extractor, be sure to sterilize it by boiling and use an antiseptic wash on your face, also.

One very effective way of extracting blackheads is to use pads of cotton on your two forefingers and press them against each side of the blackhead. Use alcohol to wipe off the pores after blackheads have been extracted. Use fresh cotton wads for each blackhead and be sure your hands are clean. In the bargain.

If a blackhead seems to be unusually firmly embedded, do not hurt your face trying to get it out at one sitting. Try it one day, soften it and try again the next day and probably by the third it will capitulate.

Always in this steaming process remember to pat cold water on the face to firm it after finishing. This way the steaming can do no harm to the skin and it certainly does good in removing blackheads.

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

To give the sink waste pipe a thorough cleansing remove the drain cover in sink and insert a short piece of hose in top or drain pipe. Turn the cold water faucet on full force. The rush of water will clean pipes.

To skin a finnan haddie cut the fish into halves and hold it in front of a brisk fire till it begins to curl up. Then start at the tail end of the fish and pull the skin off gently.

New plastered walls should stand six to eight weeks before being painted. They would stand even longer in damp weather.

Always keep a salt and pepper shaker on the kitchen range to use when seasoning foods.

MUSEUM CURATOR SAYS INDIANS INCREASING

Milwaukee—(P)—Who says the Indian is passing on?

There are 20,000 Indians in Wisconsin now compared with 6,000 in 1812, says Huron Smith, curator of the Milwaukee public museum.

The Indian population in Wisconsin in the early part of the last century was depleted because of constant wars between tribes. Smith told a civic club recently. He explained that since they have been peaceful the population has increased.

Use Postal Scales To Weigh Milwaukee's Tiniest Baby

Menasha — (P) — Milwaukee's tiniest baby is picking up weight at the rate of one-half ounce a day. Postal scales are used to record the daily weight progress. And now, at Columbia hospital, there is a drive to get the baby "out of the incubator by Christmas."

The tiny baby is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence O'Neill. When born Sept. 26, she weighed one pound, 154 ounces. The baby was one of twins, the other weighing two pounds, 14 ounces. The latter died when less than a day old.

The surviving girl now weighs four pounds, 134 ounces. At first physicians doubted whether the doll-like baby had a chance in this stern world. But the hospital incubator soon produced results. For days, no one but her doctor and nurse were permitted near her. She was fed milk with a dropper, half a spoonful every hour. Even that quantity at times seemed too much for the little digestive system, as especially prepared food was injected under the skin of the back with a hypodermic needle.

But Baby O'Neill today is able to digest all the food she needs. She gulps orange juice, cod liver oil and milk just like other infants. There's quite a stretch between meals now—three hours in the day time and four at night.

Progress, doctors said, has been so encouraging that likely Little O'Neill will get out of the incubator in time to receive Santa Claus in her own home.

The game was played as a curtain raiser for the St. John high school game with the Lourdes high school quintet of Marinette. Kolgen of Menasha was high scorer with five field goals.

The Sonnenberg team is leading Falcon basketball league play in Menasha by a two game margin and is scheduled to appear against the St. Mary high school aggregation in a scrimmage practice Monday evening. INVESTIGATE CLOSING OF BANK AT MADISON

Madison — (P) — District Attorney Fred Riser Friday intimated he had been investigating the closing of the Capital City bank with the view of possible action against some official or officials of the bank for reputedly accepting money for deposit when it was known the bank was to close. The intimation came during the preliminary hearing for R. H. Farness, assistant secretary of the Joseph M. Boyd company, who is accused of accepting for investment about $50,000 from Mrs. Della Wislock, University of Wisconsin instructor, when he knew the firm was insolvent.

Carl N. Hill, attorney for Farness, objected when Riser asked one of the resigned trustees of the company if the firm were solvent or insolvent.

Riser said if the trustee was not permitted to answer it would take about 14 weeks to introduce evidence to show solvency or insolvency of the firm.

"This case was started in part," Riser said, "to obtain court rulings as to what evidence will be required under the solvency matter. I want a

Who's News Today

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON (Copyright, 1931, by CONS. Press)

New York—Retired Wakatsuki, retiring Japanese premier, once was missing from an important cabinet meeting. Scouts found him at tending a folk dance and joining in the song "Yasukubuski," which was written in his home town and was to him as "The Sidewalks of New York" is to Al Smith.

He is a poet. Dreams and reality have contended for mastery in his career a duality as marked as that of half feudal, half industrial Japan. Twice premier, once financial minister, delegate to the London naval armaments conference, he is a bemused Hamlet—pondering to statecraft his phenomenal mind and to poetry all his ardor and mystic yearnings.

Much of his poetry is written in Chinese. When bugged by affairs of state—which he doesn't particularly like—he slips away to a retreat under a gnarled old tree and writes, or rather paints, charming verses in quaint Chinese ideographs. This, he says, restores him and he returns to the cabinet sessions with new vigor.

He is devoted to archery. In 1925 he almost precipitated a cabinet crisis by unlimbering his bow while wearing a cotton kimono and clogs. There is a traditional archery costume prescribed by Princess Shogei, who was involved in some archery doings at the birth of the world. It was a national scandal which Mr. Wakatsuki barely survived.

He is a poor man, owning no automobile, walking to work and living in a tiny cottage. He came of a disintegrated Samurai family and, being a mathematical prodigy in his youth, was sent through the Imperial university by wealthy patrons. He still toys with calculus.

The lady with the red curls showing around the edge of her bathing which goes from her chin to her toes and doing the turtle, the Jack-knife and the back flip off the diving board is Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army. Miss Booth, ruler of the $40,000,000 corporation which is the American branch of the army, comes home on the Europe today—poised, dominant and masterful and ready to renew her untiring fight against the hosts of evil.

Miss Booth's father, General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, made her American commander in 1904. She disclosed powers of organization and leadership worthy of any great magnate of the financial world. Everywhere the army drums boomed in the launts of sin and she now rules 5,000 officers and nearly 10,000 employees. Occupying a chalet at Hartsdale, elaborately scroiled with wooden fretwork, she works 18 hours a day. In 1929, she went to Europe and defeated the efforts of her brother, Bramwell Booth, to unseat her. He later died. She rules serenely. Along with the world war doughnuts went the insipid jingle, ascribed to a Salvation army lass at the front:

"In hat wears it well! Making pies for homesick lads, Sure is beating hell."

Miss Booth received the distinguished service medal in 1912.

Santa Biondo, who disappeared leaving a suicide note on the eve of her Metropolitan debut comes, like Rosa Ponselle, from Connecticut. Her parents emigrated from Italy to New Haven when she was five years old. It was there she grew up and studied music under private teachers.

Her latter does not tell why she intended to "find death in the water." Her operatic debut at Pittsburgh in 1927 was prefaced by tragedy which may possibly have been revived in some emotional disturbance, as she faced her metropolitan appearance. Her mother, to whom she was devoted, had opposed her choice of a career. Just before her Pittsburgh debut, in the San Carlo opera company, her mother's illness was overcome. Mrs. Biondo received word that her mother had died, without ever having heard her sing in public. Friends of the beautiful young soprano say she brooded over this.

Her mother's death was the ruling because the same question is involved in the Capital City bank case." The bank closed Nov. 12.

Judge S. B. Schein took the matter under advisement.

Clarkburg, W. Va. — (P) — Although active in politics for several years, Lynn S. Horner, democrat, will assume the first political office of his career when he enters the seventy-second congress as the representative of the "up and down" third Congressional district of West Virginia.

Horner defeated Representative John M. Wolvorton, republican, in the 1930 election.

Shortly after his election Horner opened a "home office" in his home city of Clarkburg as a means of serving his constituents, announcing that both the Clarkburg and Washington offices would remain open throughout his term.

URGENT PROSPECTIVE HOME OWNERS TO MAKE PLANS NOW

Babson Says Greatest Values in 20 Years Are Possible Today

Babson Park, Mass.—My advice to people who want to own a home is to lay their plans now. Real estate has always been one of the last things to be liquidated in a major depression, and reports show that prices have now been driven down to many cases to ridiculous figures. Building loans are still fairly high but the drop in materials and the increased efficiency of labor make the total cost of building a house about fifteen per cent lower than it was last year and about twenty-five per cent lower than it was in 1929. This cost factor, coupled with real estate selling by banks, brings the greatest opportunities in twenty years for building or buying a home.

Even more important is the likelihood of easier mortgage money resulting from President Hoover's Home Loan Bank project. The chief reason for the drop in home building and real estate activities is the tightness of mortgage money. By enabling banks to refinance home and farm mortgages, this new system would free a great volume of frozen real estate assets. Banks in turn will be more ready to make new construction. Despite the overbuilding from 1924 to 1929, the very low rate of home building in the past two years has created a gap in housing facilities in many sections. Under stress of reduced incomes, families have doubled up—sons and daughters going to live with parents, or parents going to live with their children. Once business picks up and mortgage money is freer, people will spread out again into homes of their own. "Shop early and avoid the rush," applies to home buying or building just as it does to Christmas shopping.

Why Own a Home?
Many people have been discouraged with home ownership in the past two years because of high carrying charges and difficult mortgage situations. Also many have been forced to move because of changed employment. Finding their homes difficult to sell because of a decline in the market and the difficulties in financing the sale, they have concluded that a home is a frozen investment. President Hoover's plan, while not intended to encourage home ownership by those who have no reasonable expectations of remaining long with the property, nevertheless overcomes much of this objection and tends to stabilize the whole residential real estate market. Mortgage loans would become a more liquid investment and people would enter into such contracts more freely than they have under the old conditions.

The Railroad Co-operative Building and Loan Association reveals some surprising results from its recent survey of home owners. In answer to one question, thirty per cent of the people said they did not desire to own their own homes. Forty-five per cent of these gave as a reason the high carrying charges and taxes; and thirty-three per cent of them said that the lack of liquidity of a home investment made them skeptical of its advantages. When we consider that eighty-five per cent of the home owners are carrying at least a first mortgage on their properties, and about one-quarter of these are carrying second mortgage loans, it is not surprising that interest rates in actual practice is making big concessions in order to get work. Also because of extreme competition for jobs, workers are giving the best they have. This means an important saving in total building costs, and insures a better quality of work. Truly this is a buyers' market both for materials and labor. The average of material prices is down twenty-nine per cent from two years ago. The reduction in labor items has been less, but the average of labor costs and materials for the ordinary residence building brings the total cost down to a point where the building dollar is now worth $1.30 compared with 1929. This is an average for the whole country. In many sections the reduction is considerably greater owing to local conditions.

Good bargains in desirable land are also plentiful. In this connection remember that the price for well-situated land over a period of years is bound to increase with the growth in population. There is only so much land and there never can be any more. The supply is practically fixed whereas the demand undergoes continual increase with the growth of the country. Those who prefer to buy a home rather than build will find excellent opportunities are also offered to the man with ready cash. Forced sales on foreclosures are prevalent. Also many properties are still being carried along by the banks rather than face losses involved in liquidation. Any one who goes shopping for a home today need not come back disappointed.

Sound Investment
People who are hoarding money would do better to put a part of it in a home. Bricks, mortar, lumber, cement, land—all items going to make up a home, are going to increase in value as business improves and the general price level rises. On the contrary, hoarded money not only brings in no income but will decrease in value with an increase in the price level. Even if twenty per cent of the billion dollars now

Stocks Show Consumption Now Ahead Of Production

BY ALLARD SMITH
Executive Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O.

When the clouds of this depression roll away there are many indications that the country will wake up to the fact that stocks of manufactured goods are exceedingly low. The present sub-normal demand on the part of consumers helps to conceal the depleted state of merchandise shelves. But as buying tends to become more normal, the situation will be revealed.

Government figures indicated that stocks of manufactured goods are now at the lowest point since 1925. There has been a decline of 5 per cent during the past year. This is entirely healthy. It means that consumption is running ahead of output in many lines and that a large replacement demand is slowly but surely accumulating.

This is evident in a number of great industries. For example, the production of steel is now at 50 per cent of the capacity of the nation's steel mills. This is an annual rate which would work out at about 300 tons of steel per capita, the smallest since 1900 and comparing with the average annual per capita production of 650 tons of steel over the last 31 years.

Currently, steel production is at the level of bicycle-and-horse and buggy days. But there is no evidence that America is going back to those days. Actually in this year of wide depression, gasoline consumption has exceeded that of last year. New automobiles are not being purchased in large numbers, but old ones are being used and worn out.

Automobile production itself in November dropped to a low point of less than 9000 units weekly, or at the rate of a little more than $4000 for 52 weeks. The inevitable recovery from that extreme decline already is appearing. Similar conditions exist in numerous other lines—reduced outputs and low stocks, although, of course, stocks of many raw materials are still high.

DEBT ACTION TO BE APPROVED BY U. S. CONGRESS

No Room for Other Alternative Despite Hullabaloo of Politicians

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Congress may fust and fume about war debt "cancellation" or "reduction" or a further moratorium, but in the end will accept the same process of revising the debt settlements that has been in effect since the war.

By the simple suggestion that the World War debt funding commission be revived, President Hoover has disposed of the whole problem of trying to have the 551 members of congress settle an international question. Congress has granted this authority before and will do so again. It is the only way out for congress and will afford just as much opportunity to make individual speeches and protests, all of which will fill the record between now and the most political campaign but will have no bearing on the result.

The practical situation is that the allies under the moratorium already granted will not pay in the present fiscal year and as for the year beginning June, 1932, action will not actually be necessary until December, 1932, to ratify any agreement entered into by the funding commission with respect either to an extension of the moratorium or a new schedule of annual payments.

Technically speaking, the allies are due to pay on Dec. 15 the money they were promised by President Hoover's moratorium that they could withhold.

Action Necessary
But the United States treasury is not likely to present a bill to its foreign creditors, or take any step which would mean the pledge given in the moratorium of last June. Also there is an overwhelming sentiment in favor of continuing the moratorium and the resistance is on the payments beyond June, 1932. Many members will wish to indicate their disbelief in cancellation or reduction.

Mr. Hoover's plan for a revival of the funding commission will require a majority vote of both houses of congress. On the commission will be members of both houses and both Republicans and Democrats, so that it becomes virtually the agent of the legislative branch of the government. In the past every agreement submitted by the funding commission has been ratified by congress.

The debate may come on the instructions given to the commission and there will probably be the usual effort to limit its powers. Over this does not have any practical effect for in the previous law creating the funding commission specific instructions were given as to interest rates and it was specified that the term of payments should not exceed twenty-five years, but when the debt agreements were finally negotiated they contained different interest rates and a period of payment extending in some cases about 62 years.

The debt agreements are not treaties but become pieces of domestic legislation. When every acceptance of foreign proposals does not become an agreement in the same sense as a treaty but is a tentative plan subject to congressional approval. And when congress acts it does not exercise the usual powers of ratification but simply amends the existing law or repeals its own instructions about interest rates or hoarded were invested in the building or buying of homes, it would free many times that amount of money for new home financing and would raise the level of employment and stimulate sales of many industries depending on building.

Business by the billiard ball now registers 53 per cent below normal, or 13 per cent below last year.

As a reward for accurate placing of shots on the "Whiffle" board, Goldy's is offering a splendid prize for the best score made from now until Christmas eve.

Christmas shoppers who know what they want should come to Goldy's. And those who don't will get plenty of valuable gift ideas.

CONDITIONS IMPROVE IN PITTSBURGH AREA
Pittsburgh—(P)—Pay checks and coal dinner pails were prominent as Christmas gifts to several thousand unemployed workmen in the Pittsburgh district today.

The Wheeling Steel corporation alone called back 1,100 men; Westinghouse Airbrake company announced it would call back a large number of former employees; the Bessemer steel plants near Wheeling announced they would resume operations; and Portlan Coke company officials said they had received new orders and would call back many of their former employees.

Add to this was reports of observers saying that river shipments are increasing and that the December tonnage through the Pittsburgh harbor should show a marked gain.

The 1,100 men called back by Wheeling Steel will open the Bessemer plant of the company which has been shut down for seven weeks.

And now that the depression has taken the place of the war, it's more difficult for army officers to say, "Charge it!"

Veteran Stars Returning In Brand New Pictures Here Next Week

SALLY BLANE SEEN IN "SHANGHAIED"

Sister of Loretta Young Only Girl on Board Clipper Ship

In the role of "Mary," the sorely tried heroine of Norman Springers story, "Shanghaied," showing next Friday and Saturday at the Appleton Theatre, Sally Blane has the only female role in the picture. To be sure, there are a few other women in it but Mary, who is the heroine and the only woman on board a clipper ship with a shanghaied crew.

Sally, who is a sister of Loretta Young and a close friend of Joan Crawford, was born in Salina, Colorado, and made her picture debut as a movie chit. Later, in order to finish her education, she went to St. Bernard's school in Los Angeles and to Ramona Convent School in Alhambra, California, from which she graduated.

She returned to the screen as an extra and since that time has appeared in Universal's "The College Years" series, with Rudy Vallee in "The Vagabond Lover," "Tanned Legs," "The Very Last Day," "The Great Day," "The Star Witness," "The Men of the Sea," and others.

She likes all outdoor sports, reads a lot and is fond of surf bathing. As everyone knows, she is an extremely beautiful girl with a sweet, attractive personality. She stands five feet four inches high and weighs 117 pounds. Her hair is light brown and her eyes are blue.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

If December 13th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:50 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8:40 a. m. and from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m.

December 13th, astrologically speaking, is marked for sentimental and emotional interests. There will be a renewal of old ties, which will launch you on a sea of new activities and pleasures. There will be a general atmosphere of well being and contentment. A new era will begin.

Children born on this December 13th will have fruitful futures and will crave excitement and amusement. With patience and proper guidance their characters may be moulded into something fine and likeable, but if they are allowed to grow up untrained and unrestrained, they will make selfish, irritable adults. They should be given active lives.

Nature was not asleep, nor in an unduly mood when she gave you your general "make-up" on December 13th. She did not want your mental powers, and she did not leave you talentless. Why you have acquired a chronic chip on your shoulder is beyond comprehension! You exaggerate your misfortunes and belittle your fortunes. You sit down to unhappy circumstances, instead of standing up to them. You think you are out of luck, when all you need is a little luck. You want constant help through this world, although you are fitted to wend your way up hill and down without the aid of props. As soon as you change your attitude of mind, you will be able to find open gate-ways to both happiness and success.

You have one or two decided talents, and you should cultivate them to the utmost. You are not versatile, but as a "specialist" in your line of work, you could almost be a genius. A general education would be wasted on you for you are not a natural student, and you will never take up intellectual pursuits.

You cannot do without companionship, as you are miserable when alone. Your friends however do not bring you much pleasure, as you see all people through eyes of suspicion and envy. Your own jealousy will always interfere with your affairs of the heart. You have very hilarious moods, and very depressing ones; your emotions are seldom kept at normal.

CLAIM GRANTED TO APPLETON MAIL MAN

Further Evidence of Injuries to Louis Stark Given to Commission

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau: Washington—After cruising to and from Louis J. Stark, Appleton mail carrier, compensation for injuries suffered while carrying his mail, the U. S. Employees Compensation Commission has granted his claim on the basis of further evidence submitted according to a report received by Representative George J. Schneider of Appleton.

Stark was hurt on June 15 of this year, when a sudden storm came on after a bad start out of his route. He decided not to continue on his route in the storm and turned back, taking a road which was not his right one, with the result that he was laid up for 35 days.

After Stark's first request for compensation was turned down, he took his case to the Representative. Schneider had advised him to submit evidence from witnesses.

As a result, Stark submitted affidavits from Dr. J. B. MacLaren, the doctor who attended him after his accident, and from Mrs. M. Taylor, who knew the circumstances of his injury and this evidence convinced the Compensation Commission that his claim was justified.

Scene from "The Guilty Generation"

Robert Young, Boris Karloff, Leo Carrillo and Constance Cummings in "The Guilty Generation" at Warner's Appleton Theatre. Can the children of mortal enemies find happiness? The son of Tony Roca and the daughter of Mike Palmero meet and fall in love with each other before they know that they are the children of racketeers who are deadly enemies and that they must either give each other up or love secretly. What did they do? That is the dramatic problem solved in "The Guilty Generation," the Columbia picture showing Sunday and Monday at the Appleton Theatre, with Leo Carrillo, Constance Cummings, Robert Young and Boris Karloff in the leading roles. The action takes place for the most part on a magnificent Florida estate where a beautiful girl lives in luxury but dare not stir out of her garden without an armed bodyguard.

"REBOUND" IS STORY OF DOMESTIC TANGLE

When love begins to show signs of ineffectuality, it is worth fighting.

A particularly interesting view of this engrossing question is set to be taken in "Rebound," the Doris Day picture, which is being shown at the Appleton Theatre beginning Monday for the principal roles are played by Joan Crawford and Clark Gable, two of the most popular personalities on the current screen and the picture was directed by Clarence Brown, who did such fine work on Norma Shearer's "A Free Soul" and Greta Garbo's "Inspiration."

In response to the many requests for the two girls who makes a comfortable living for herself out of the "digging" activities of her fair associates.

Prohibition workers say the people who are yelling for repeal are sounding a sour note. Probably pickled.

And now it transpires American Indians have been getting the dose for a hundred years. Wait till they find that out.

BIG CAST OF SCREEN, STAGE STARS IN FILM

"Girls About Town" to Be Shown Three Days at Warner's Theatre

A brilliant cast of screen favorites whose versatility has been many times proved in the pay-houses, and talkie houses of the nation appears in "Girls About Town," Paramount's sparkling celluloid document of the gay girls of prey who ride about in limousines but don't pay the chauffeurs which opens at the mid-nite review tonight and runs next week Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Warner's Appleton Theatre.

Heading the list of film and stage celebrities of the cast are Kay Francis, Joel McCrea, Lilyan Tashman, Eugene Pallette and Allan Dinehart. Others who are seen and heard in contributory roles are Anderson Lawler, George Barbier, Lucille Webster Gleason, Robert McWade, Judith Wood, Adrienne Ames and Claire Dodd.

Miss Francis and Miss Tashman divide the honors of the title role. Miss Francis, who recently appeared as Olive Brook's errand wife in "24 Hours," is the less hard-boiled of this team of gold-diggers. She falls in love with a wealthy young man, Joel McCrea, whom she had set out to make her victim. Miss Tashman sticks to the guns of her practical mode of living, not forsaking her code of society racketeering until the last ditch.

Eugene Pallette is the fun-loving rover who comes to the big city as a wealthy business man, but suffers a near-deflation at the hands of the "Girls About Town." Allan Dinehart is the crafty employer of the two girls who makes a comfortable living for himself out of the "digging" activities of his fair associates.

Prohibition workers say the people who are yelling for repeal are sounding a sour note. Probably pickled.

Gable Plays in "Sporting Blood"

Clark Gable, Madge Evans and Lew Cody in "Sporting Blood" at the Elite Theatre, 3 days starting Monday.

RUTH CHATTERTON IS IN NEW PICTURE

"ONCE A LADY"

One of those events looked forward to and cherished by movie millions, a new Ruth Chatterton picture, is being shown Saturday night as a Pre-view in the mid-nite show and one day, Sunday, as the feature attraction at the Fox Theatre. The newest works of the "first lady" of films is titled "Once a Lady" and is composed of surefire dramatic clay which this emotional sculptress so effectively handled in "Madame X," "Sarah and Son," and "Anybody's Woman."

The story is of a Russian adventuress who, after many armours, is won by the different type of loving of a rich young Briton. She is made unwelcome by the family, and despised for her child, she returns to Paris to become its most notorious woman. As she is believed to have been killed in a train wreck, she joins the army of the living dead and watches the progress of her daughter from the distance.

The husband's faulty divorce decree, his fear of scandal and the woman's anonymous devotion to her grown daughter's love urged, are dramatically woven into a happy event for the younger generation and makes an impressive climax.

Some of the others in the cast who do splendid work are Ivor Novello, Jill Esmond, Geoffrey Kerr, and others.

"SPORTING BLOOD" NEW TYPE PICTURE

Thrills of Racetrack and Gambler's Schemes Are Background for Film

Thrills of the racetrack and the schemes and methods of crooked gamblers serve as a colorful background for a love story in "Sporting Blood," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's drama of racing life, which will come to the Elite theatre for 3 days starting Monday.

Based on the Saturday Evening Post story "Horseflesh," by Fredrick Hazlett Brennan, it was adapted to the screen by Charles Brabin, its director; Willard Mack, author of "Kick In," "Gang War," "Common Sin" and other plays, and Wanda Tuckock.

Though not a racetrack play in the usual sense of the word, it shows the entire racing business as a background for its general theme. Thrills of the Kentucky Derby, intimate glimpses behind the scenes in paddocks and in gambling halls are incidental to the love story that runs through the play.

Gable Featured

Clark Gable, of "The Secret Sin" and "A Free Soul" fame and Madge Evans, heroine of "Son of India," play the lovers and Ernest Torrence, Lew Cody, Marie Prevost, Harry Holman, Hallam Cooley, J. Farrell McDonald and others are in the cast.

FIRM HERE PUBLISHES BOOKLET BY TITTEMORE

Distribution of a booklet on the farm problem by J. N. Tittmore, United States marshal for eastern Wisconsin, was started this week. The booklet, which has 100 pages, was published by the C. C. Nelson company of Appleton. The book is unusual in its treatment because it has been written in the form of a dialogue between Mr. Tittmore and a normal school student who inclines to the idea of Henry George's single tax theory as a panacea for the world's economic ills. The student asks a series of questions which are answered by the author at length.

SCHOOL PLAY AT AUDITORIUM IS WELL ATTENDED

Students Present "Once There Was a Princess" Friday Night

Kaukauna—A large crowd attended the presentation of "Once There Was a Princess," a three-act play written by Juliet Wilbur Tompkins, in the high school auditorium Friday evening. The play was offered by seniors of the high school, the proceeds to be used in financing publication of the high school year book. During the afternoon the play was offered to school children.

All members of the cast portrayed their parts well, and the audience was kept in a humorous mood by the antics of Joe Boyd, a hen-pecked husband, played by Arthur Miller. Hazel Egan presented to the audience the typical aunt, who was continually brewing trouble.

The plot was centered about a small town girl who married into a royal European family. Disappointed in her marriage, she resolved to return to her home town. The small town became enthused with the prospect of a princess coming to their city. During the preparations for the homecoming, the princess arrived, and was mistaken for a sewing woman.

Realizing the hopes of the townspeople she did not disclose her identity, but was discovered by a former sweetheart, and together they schemed an appropriate arrival of the queen.

After playing princess for an afternoon the girl slipped away. Phil Lennox, played by Jack Van Lieshout, was the former childhood sweetheart, who won the love of the princess.

The cast: Princess Delastorre, Margaret Farnsworth; Phil Lennox, Jack Van Lieshout; Joe Boyd, Arthur Miller; Mrs. Boyd, Ioneil Chizek; Hazel Boyd, Betsy Ashe; Mrs. Furrington, Allegra Sullivan; Mrs. Seaver, Joy Doering; Ruby Boyd, Dorothy Becht; Aunt Meta Trimble, Hazel Egan; Milton D'Arcy, Peter Metz; Miss Cecelia Calvy directed the cast. Members of the business staff were Richard Estlin, Wilma Jansen, and Robert Meyer. Mrs. Carl Runtz and Miss Ethlyn Handman were in charge of the make-ups. Music was furnished by the high school orchestra under direction of Miss Lucille Austin. Fred Bartsch and Elmer Vanoveren were stage managers, and Vernon Mullen was in charge of the lighting.

COMMITTEE DISCUSSES LOAN APPLICATIONS

Kaukauna — Kaukauna's finance committee to disburse relief funds here met at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Farmers and Merchants bank. Discussion of several applications for loans was held. A report was submitted by W. F. Ashe, a member of the committee. Methods of applying for loans from the fund will be announced Monday, Mr. Ashe stated.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

RUFFS AND HONOR-TRICKS

The potency of distribution in making naught of the power of honor-tricks is illustrated in the hand which forms the text of today's article. The bidding by which East and West reached their game contract may perhaps be open to criticism. In fact, West displayed unusual optimism which was only redeemed by the accuracy of the play. South, with 2 sure trumps, could not be blamed for his Double of the game contract, nor for his useful acceptance of the mysteries of distribution when that contract was made.

South—Dealer.

SYNOPSIS: The Preston family provides Truman Rock with plenty of excitement on the first day of his return to Wagontongue. Thiry Preston seems the most interesting fusion of something more of which she was unconscious. Rock strode back to Sol Winters' store.

Preston seems the most interesting girl he has ever met. His introduction to her comes while he is waiting for a friend, Sol Winter, to return from his store. Thirty comes in and Rock pretends to be the clerk. After his inexperience has caused sufficient comedy to draw them together, he tells her who he is. Winter, returning, tells Thirty that Rock is the man who saved his son's life. Rock carries her bundles to the corral and, while he talks to her, two of the Preston boys come up. Ash Preston has a black reputation on the range, and is a quick man with a gun. Ash tries to pick a quarrel with Rock. His brother takes away his gun, saying, "Ash, you don't know this cellar."

"Now, son, what's happened?"

"Sol, we'll investigate my state of mind last," replied Rock, ruefully. "Listen. I ran into the Preston outfit." He related to his friend all that had occurred at the corral.

"Aw! Too bad for Thirty. She's always been' humiliated. No wonder she comes to town so seldom. An' you took water from that Ash Preston?"

"I sure did. Gee! It felt queer. But I'd taken a beatin' for that girl."

"Son, most every young fellow an' son some older ones—in this country have been struck by lightnin' when they first seen Thirty. But

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

"ASH needs gun fer?" demanded Preston, half resentful of his brother's precaution.

"Sure you don't, but you might, if you had one," replied Range, with a grin. "Anyway, Ash, you're sholin' off your chin enough. I tell you this tellar's a stranger."

"I can't see that it did them good. Thiry isn't to be courted, they say."

"Struck by lightning! Sure that might be it. But never you mind about me. I'm solid on my feet even if my heels is in the clouds." Tell me things. I want to know all about this Preston outfit."

"Rock, you're hot-headed. You fly off the handle," returned Winter, gravely. "You might give me more trouble with the Prestons. I've had considerable"

The younger rider had been bending his intent, clear gaze upon Rock and had formed conclusions.

"Whash the hell we care? He's Big Hat, an' I'm a-goin' to chase him pronto."

Thirly Preston stepped out as if impelled, yet she was evidently clamped with fear. Rock thought, for Thirly's sake, he had better make as successful an exit as possible.

Preston lurched by Thirly and swept out a long slow arm, with open hand, aimed at Rock's face. But Rock dodged and at the same time stuck out his foot dexterously. The rider, his momentum unchecked, tripped and lost his balance. He fell slowly, helplessly, and striking on his shoulder he rolled over in the

"Sol, you can trust me."

"Well, this Preston outfit is sure prominent in these parts. They call them 'The Thirteen Prestons of Sunset Pass.' It's a big family. Nobody seems to know where they come from. Anyway, they drove a herd of cattle in here some time after you left. An' 'ceptin' Ash Preston, they're just about the most likable outfit you ever seen. Fact is, they're like Thirly. So you don't need to be told more about that. They're at in Sun-et Pass, right on the Divide. You know the place. An' it wasn't long until they were known all over the range. Wonderful outfit, fine horses and ropes."

"Go on. Sol, it's sure like a story."

"Well, son, there used to be more than concerned the Culvers, Tolls, or Smalls, and not so much as used to be about the little outfit down in the woods. You know I range. All the outfit are ore a other's cattle. But, lately, the last two years, conditions have gone of the same, in that way, and some different in another. # This is the Christmas You Need to Shop MORE!

THE Christmas of 1931 will test — as no other Christmas in the past decade has tested — the true depth of Christmas giving in American hearts. Its genuineness of course, is usually not brought out until some sort of a crisis arrives. Today we are already seeing examples of it. On one hand we have examples of selfishness, with people who could well afford to give as much as ever actually using "business conditions" as an excuse to pass up deserving friends — or to buy them inferior gifts.

But — luckily — there are other kinds of people. They are the kind who can come through a crisis, heads up and smiling. If it pinches them a bit to give — they are STILL GIVING. What's more, they're getting a greater kick out of giving than in many years. They're the people who are laying the foundation for a better Christmas in 1932.

If you think you can give as much this year, try shopping at Appleton stores. You'll find better gifts at lower prices than even last Christmas — and you'll find a greater variety. Appleton stores, realizing the need for a good Christmas business, have set about to outdo themselves in the matter of unprecedentedly attractive values.

Most of you have extra money provided for Christmas shopping. Perhaps, now that the time has come to spend it, you're a bit panicky, wondering if you hadn't better hang on to it. Well — you probably need money every day out of the three hundred and sixty five.

But there's only ONE Christmas a year.

Recovery Late Today Follows Further Sinking Into New Low Ground

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York—(AP)—The stock market was boosted by short covering in the last few minutes of trading today, after sinking further into new low ground.
Losses of 1 to 2 points were cancelled or reduced in the final upturn, and several issues closed with gains of fractions to a point. The closing tone was steady. The market was fairly active, transfers approximately 1,500,000 shares for the two-hour session.
Further weakness of bonds and fairly wide breaks in several preferred shares, had a depressing effect upon the general equity list, before the covering movement began.
Ralls, on the whole, attracted considerable buying, as the attitude of the union leaders in selecting a committee to handle the strike was regarded as a distinctly conciliatory, although the prospects of an early agreement on wages was regarded as dim.
Selling of U. S. Steel was a major factor in the general slump in shares during the middle of the session. This issue dropped to 43 and closed at 44, off 1 1/2. Bethlehem regained a 1 point loss and American Telephone converted a 1 point loss into a gain.
The fall of the Japanese cabinet and the prospect of a new government committed to inflation, was not regarded in Wall Street as seriously disturbing. The Japanese yen again broke widely, but further declines in silk futures were moderate.
The effects of suspension of the free gold standard by Japan—leaving only France and United States, of the leading powers, still on a free gold basis—would be similar to the effects of England's inflation, and might bring Japan in completing with Great Britain in foreign markets, during the temporary stimulus of inflation. A wide slump in silk prices might result in inventory losses to some American textile concerns. The possible effects upon Japan's consumption of American cotton, of which she is a large buyer, is somewhat problematical.
The cotton market was only slightly heavy, closing off 25 to 45 cents a bale. While the Japanese yen dropped more than 4 cents, the British pound rose sharply, gaining about 7 cents. European currencies were higher, although there was no further advance in the French franc.
Net changes in most of the pivotal stocks were inconsequential. Losses of a point or two appeared in Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Johns Manville. New York Central, Union Pacific, Eastman and Loews each gained about a point.
The weekend trade and business surveys pointed to more active Christmas buying, but increasing utility shares in keeping with the year-end trend. Youngstown steel output is estimated for next week as somewhat lower.

RECORD HOG RUNS SEND PRICES DOWN

Beef Prices Lowered to Meet Competition from Pork Prices

Chicago—(AP)—Contrasted with last week's record run of swine, this week's total of 720,000 in twelve leading markets shrunk 162,000. However, current volume of marketings is still far ahead of a year ago, and it was this comparison that gave packers their cue this week.

Butchers' lower wholesale pork in 35 years involved price reductions on the rank and file of cattle offered this week despite curtailed supplies. Aggregate receipts at leading markets were 35,000 under last week and 11,000 lighter than the corresponding week last year. Only choice heaves salable above 11.00 were held stationary, while medium to good kinds lost 50-75c, light kinds dropping most. In spots light yearlings were down fully 1.00.

Beef prices of weight topped at $12.55, with light yearlings at 11.75, but most of the cattle were worked off at 6.00-8.50. Feeder demand was light, but there was enough country demand to give the market for two purpose steers moving both to killers and feeders at $5.25 and downward a good footing and only slight declines were registered.

Active resistance to packers' attempts to force choice fat lambs under the $6.00 mark saved the trade in the sheep from a decline. Liberal marketings, with comparatively few lambs billed direct to packers during the week, were cleared day after day without any marked losses, and by Thursday strength developed. This was dissipated on Friday's session and final sales of lambs ranging from $5.50 to $6.00 and topping at $6.10 closed steady.

MEN WANT USEFUL GIFTS

Here is a message from Appleton's foremost men's stores . . . they can help you in your search for men's gifts which please most

MEN may be momentarily pleased with knick-knacks and gadgets, but the gifts which bring out the genuine smiles and real glow of inner satisfaction are the kind of gift they can wear and be proud of!

What better expression of your regard than a well chosen piece of men's wear? What keener tribute to a man's good taste than a clean-cut, fresh accessory to his wardrobe or a well-made new suit or overcoat?

Consider any man on your gift list. No matter what his age or interests, you'll find a gift for him in the field of men's wear that will please beyond measure.

If he's of the outdoor type, then you can safely select sweaters, wool hosiery, heavy gloves, jackets, caps and the like. If he spends a great deal of time at home, then comfortable robes present an admirable suggestion. If he attends social functions or if his school or business require him to be well-groomed, then he'll appreciate additions to his supply of shirts, hosiery, ties, mufflers, suspenders, garters and belts

And name the man who couldn't use pajamas!

It only requires a little forethought to select a gift which will please. Consider your man, his age, appearance, tastes and so on. Tell them to the qualified courteous salesman who will wait on you. His knowledge and experience will aid you in making selections which will hit the mark of masculine pleasure.

Therein lies one of the beauties of buying for men in a men's store or department. You receive attention from men who know their field well and who themselves are selected to serve you because of their own good taste and ability to judge the correct in men's wear.

Make the following men's stores your headquarters for the presents you are buying for men. You're certain of pleasing and sure of fair, courteous treatment and prices particularly reasonable.
